GEOGRAPHICAL DISCOVERY

AND

TERRITORIAL CHANGES

FROM THE BEGINNING OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

By J. SCOTT KELTIE, LL.D., Secretary to the Royal Geographical Society.[1]

IN the space which can be allotted to this Introduction, only the most important geographical discoveries can be briefly indicated, and only the greater territorial changes to which States have been subjected.

EUROPE.

In Europe during the century all the great States have instituted or improved their surveys, so that the greater part of the Continent is now officially mapped. Certain portions of the Balkan Peninsula, especially in Albania, are still imperfectly known, while much of that Peninsula as well as Russia has yet to be adequately surveyed. The various Alpine clubs have done much for a knowledge of the mountainous regions of Europe, while many private explorers have worked out the physical geography of special districts.

The following are the leading territorial changes which have occurred during the century. It is unnecessary to notice the many fluctuations that took place under the Napoleonic regime before 1815.

In 1809 the whole of Finland and the Aland Islands were handed over to Russia by Sweden.

In 1814 Norway was transferred to Sweden by Denmark.

By the Peace of Akerman, 1817, ratified by Treaty of Adrianople, 1829, the freedom of Servia, subject to the payment of tribute and to the presence of Turkish garrisons in certain towns was decreed.

The independence of Greece was by the Treaty of Adrianople (1829) acknowledged by the Porte. A Kingdom of Greece was formed, taking in Peloponnesus, Eubœa, the Cyclades, and a small part of Central Greece, south of a line drawn from the Gulf of Arta to the Gulf of Volo.

Poland was made an integral part of the Russian Empire in 1832.

By the Treaty of London (15th November 1831), Belgium, till then a part of the Netherlands, was constituted an independent and neutral State. The Grand Duchy of Luxemburg was divided, the fortress of Luxemburg remaining in the hands of the King of Holland as Grand Duke, who also, in compensation for the part of Luxemburg ceded to Belgium, received a portion of Limburg.

Cracow, for thirty years a Republic, was in 1846 incorporated with Austria.

By the Paris Conference, 19th August 1858, the Danubian Principalities, Moldavia and Wallachia, were made practically independent.

In 1859 Lombardy was added to the Sardinian Kingdom, with the exception of the fortresses of Mantua and Peschiera, and Italy was formed into a Confederation under the presidency of the Pope.

In 1860 Tuscany, Modena, Parma, and Romagna voted their own annexation to Piedmont. The two Sicilies were won by Garibaldi, and the kingly title of Sardinia was merged in that of the restored Kingdom of Italy.

In 1860 Savoy and Nice were annexed to France.

In December 1861 the definitive union of Moldavia and Walachia, under the name of Rumania, was proclaimed and acknowledged by the Porte.

The Kingdom of Greece was in 1864 enlarged by the addition of the Ionian Islands.

In terms of the Peace of Vienna, October 1864, Christian IX. of Denmark renounced all claim to Lauenburg, Holstein, and Schleswig.

In terms of a Provisional Convention, signed at Gastein, 1865, Austria was to have the temporary government of Holstein and Prussia that of Schleswig, while Lauenburg was absolutely ceded to Prussia. The formal cession of Lauenburg to Prussia was made on the 14th August 1865. This Convention of Gastein was abrogated 1866.

By the Treaty of Prague, 23rd August 1866, the old Germanic Confederation (formed 8th June 1815) was dissolved, and a New Confederation, from which Austria was excluded (Norddeutscher Bund), was formed under the presidency of Prussia, with a common constitution and assembly, the river Main to divide the Northern Confederation from the Southern Confederacy; Prussia took full possession of Holstein and also of Schleswig, under promise to restore the Northern or Danish part of Schleswig to Denmark if its inhabitants voted for this result—an engagement, however, never seriously intended, and formally abrogated by secret treaty between Austria and Germany on the 11th

October 1878. Further, in terms of the PRAGUE Treaty, PRUSSIA annexed HANOVER, HESSE-CASSEL, NASSAU, and the City of FRANKFURT.

By the Treaty of VIENNA, signed 3rd October 1866, AUSTRIA surrendered the QUADRILATERAL (i.e., the four fortresses of PESCHIERA on an island in the MINCIO; MANTUA on the MINCIO; VERONA and LEGNAGO, both on the ADIGE) and VENETIA to FRANCE, who transferred them to ITALY.

In 1867 the Turkish garrisons in SERVIA were withdrawn. The same year LUXEMBURG was, by the Treaty of LONDON, declared neutral territory.

ROME was completely evacuated by the French on the 21st August 1870.

By Royal decree ROME and its provinces were incorporated with the kingdom of ITALY, 9th October 1870. Pius IX. was allowed to retain the Vatican with its dependencies, the churches of STA. MARIA, MAGGIORE, and CASTEL GANDOLFO.

As a result of the Franco-German War a Treaty was signed between FRANCE and GERMANY at FRANKFURT, on the 10th May 1871. By this Treaty FRANCE surrendered to GERMANY the province of ALSACE—with the exception of BELFORT CASTLE, which was restored to FRANCE—and the larger part of LORRAINE. Thereby was the French Frontier, which first reached the RHINE in 1648, pushed back from it; under the name of ELSASS-LOTHRINGEN, these territories now form part of the GERMAN EMPIRE, but not part of the Kingdom of PRUSSIA or any other German State.

The GERMAN EMPIRE, dissolved in 1806, was, as a result of the Franco-German War, reconstituted in 1871, with the King of PRUSSIA as German Emperor.

In formulation of the results of the Russo-Turkish War the Treaty of Berlin was signed by the European Powers, 13th July 1878, to supersede and annul the Treaty of SAN STEFANO. In terms of the BERLIN Treaty, BULGARIA north of the BALKANS was constituted an autonomous principality, tributary to the Sultan; BULGARIA, south of the BALKANS, was made into a province, with the title of EASTERN RUMELIA, subject to the authority of the Sultan, but with a Christian Governor and an autonomous administration; MONTENEGRO was declared independent of TURKEY, with new boundaries and ANTIVARI for seaport; SERVIA, under a native dynasty, was constituted a free State, released from all tribute or vassalage. A slight increase of territory was also allowed SERVIA, but the boundary line was so drawn as to leave part of the old Servian land to the Turk, and to carefully keep apart the frontiers of the Servian and Montenegrin Principalities. RUMANIA, moreover, was declared independent, losing however, to RUSSIA the part of BESSARABIA acquired in 1856 in exchange for the DOBRUDSCHA. The BERLIN Treaty further advised the Porte to make some cession of territory to GREECE, and the line of frontier subsequently recommended gave to GREECE, JANINA as well as THESSALY. It was also provided that AUSTRIA should occupy and administer BOSNIA and HERZEGOVINA.

By the BERLIN Conference DULCIGNO was assigned to MONTENEGRO. On the 26-27th November 1880 the surrender of DULCIGNO to MONTENEGRO was finally made.

In 1881 RUMANIA was created into a Kingdom.

By Convention between TURKEY and GREECE, signed 2nd July, and carried into effect 6th July 1881, THESSALY was ceded to GREECE.

By an Anglo-German Agreement, signed 1st July 1890, HELGOLAND was transferred to GERMANY.

In 1896 the Prince of BULGARIA was recognised by all the Powers as ruler of the whole of BULGARIA.

As a result of the War between TURKEY and GREECE in 1897, the frontier between the two States was readjusted to the advantage of Turkey. At the same time (1898) autonomy was granted to CRETE, under a High Commissioner, appointed by agreement among the Powers, the nominal suzerainty of the Porte being recognised.

ASIA.

In the early part of the century ASIA was visited by many travellers, not all of whom can be strictly regarded as explorers.

In 1800-02 Leake visited ASIA MINOR, PALESTINE, and CYPRUS, mainly as an archæologist. Seetzen, also as a scholar and archæologist, spent several years (1802-06) in ASIA MINOR and SYRIA, and in 1807, et seq. visited Northern ARABIA. Burckhardt (1808-12) spent four years in SYRIA and the SINAI PENINSULA. Still more important was his journey (1814-16) to MECCA and MEDINA and other parts of ARABIA. Pottinger's mission from INDIA to BALUCHISTAN in 1810 was a noteworthy land march. Fraser's travels in PERSIA in 1821 are still important, and in the same year Csoma visited BOKHARA and BALKH. Wellsted, in 1829-35, besides exploring the SINAI PENINSULA and surveying the Arabian and Nubian coasts of the RED SEA, made an extensive journey through OMAN. The EUPHRATES Expedition (1835-37) under Chesney (who had previously done much travelling in these regions) was fruitful in results in many directions. Its object was the establishment of steam communication with INDIA, and its route lay through almost unexplored countries. Tobler's journeys in the East, especially on foot over most of PALESTINE (1835-36, 1848, 1858, 1865), resulted in rich additions to the topography of the HOLY LAND. Of equal importance in many respects were the travels in PALESTINE of Robinson (1838 and 1852), still regarded as an authority on that country. Ainsworth and Rassam's expedition through ASIA MINOR, 1839-40, was noteworthy. Beke and Moore in 1837 established the low level of the DEAD SEA. Beke's visit to the SINAI PENINSULA in 1873-74 resulted in one of the most important works on that sacred spot. The work of the PALESTINE Exploration Fund (founded 1865) throws all else into the shade, the results being a perfect map of the country and a whole library of information on all aspects of the HOLY LAND. One of the most important contributions to a knowledge of PERSIA during these early years were the travels of Morier (1808 and 1816). In 1879 and following years Sir Charles Wilson did much for the geography of ASIA MINOR, while the journeys of Tchihatchef (1850-59) deserve mention. Noteworthy also are Burton's visits to the land of MIDIAN (1877-78), the Blunts' journeys through SYRIA and NORTH ARABIA (1877-79), and Laurence Oliphant's travels east of the JORDAN. In 1840, Trümmer discovered the remains of ancient NINEVEH, on which and on the other remains of this district so much work was subsequently done by Layard, Rawlinson, Ainsworth, George Smith, and others. In more recent years the ASIA MINOR Exploration Fund has done good work in exploring ancient sites and roads, the names of Ramsay, Hogarth, and Munro, being specially worthy of mention, while a similar association in Philadelphia has done important work at NIPPUR and other sites under Peters and other explorers. Leonhard explored some of the least known portions of ASIA MINOR to the north and north-west of ANGORA in 1899-1900, while Maunsell has done much in Central KURDESTAN to the south of LAKE VAN. Ellsworth Huntington's expedition down the cañons of the EUPHRATES is of special interest.

In ARABIA the most noteworthy explorations since 1840 have been those of Wrede in HADRAMAUT and neighbouring regions (1843); Burton's daring visit to MECCA and MEDINA in 1853; Palgrave's journey across ARABIA, 1862-63, leading through NEJD and the WAHABITE country; Pelly's visit to the latter in 1865; Miles' journey across the great mountains of OMAN in 1876; Manzoni's journeys through YEMEN to Sana 1877-78 and 1880; Doughty's extensive travels from Syria south by the Pilgrim route to Mecca in 1876, et seq., with excursions into the interior; Glaser's extensive journeys in Yemen, 1883-85; Hurgronje's journey to Mecca and six months residence there, 1885; Courtellmont's visits to Mecca in 1893; Hirsch's visit to the Hadramaut in 1893; Bent's visits in 1893-97; Musil's numerous journeys in the deserts of Northern Arabia, 1897, et seq.; Zwemer's three journeys in Northern Oman, 1900-01; and Hein's visit to Gishin on the south coast of Arabia, 1902.

The region as far as Caucasia has been visited by various travellers and expeditions. Ararat was ascended by James Bryce, while quite recently much good work has been done in exploring the Caucasus by Freshfield, Grove, Telfer, Dent, Dechy, and Radde.

For most of our knowledge of Afghanistan and Baluchistan we are indebted to British political missions and military expeditions. In 1840-41 Stoddart and Connolly passed through Afghanistan on their famous expedition to Bokhara. Bellew travelled in Afghanistan in 1857-58. In 1861 and following years took place Vambery's journey through Persia to Bokhara and back by Herat. Of great importance was the work of the British Boundary Commissioners (Goldsmid, St. John, and others), in 1870-72 in Eastern Persia and Baluchistan, resulting in St. John's six-sheet map of Persia. In 1871-72 Bellew accomplished his journey from the Indus to the Tigris. Noteworthy also are V. Baker's journeys in N. Persia, 1873, Napier's and Macgregor's travels through Khorasan, 1874 and 1875; Tietze's visits to Elburz and Demavend, 1874; and Floyer's journeys through Baluchistan and Persia, 1875. Since 1875 Houtum-Schindler has contributed largely to a knowledge of Persian geography. Macgregor explored Northern Baluchistan in 1877, while the Afghan campaign of 1878 added greatly to our knowledge of that country. A number of survey officers accompanied or followed the expedition, and their surveys combined with the operations of Grodekof and other Russian officers who visited Herat and neighbouring regions, have done much to contribute to an accurate knowledge of what is known as the Iranian Plateau. The Afghan Boundary Commission, under Redway and Lumsden, accompanied as it was by specialists, rendered still further service to Iranian geography. The Baluchistan Boundary Commission completed its work in 1896. Colonel Sir T. H. Holdich, and the other survey officers who accompanied the force against the Afridis in 1897-98 have been able to map a region of which little was known. Holdich's explorations in Makran also deserve mention.

Selby's ascent in 1842 of the Karun and Diz rivers is classical. Recently his work has been supplemented by the observations of Houtum-Schindler, Curzon, Lynch, and Mrs Bishop; Curzon having also made an extensive journey through Persia, which has had important geographical results. More recent exploring work has been done in Persia by Sawyer, Vaughan, Sykes, and Sarre; while Savage Landor has thrown some additional light on the ruined villages of Zaidan. The opening of the Nushki-Sistan Trade Route has added considerably to our knowledge of the country through which it runs.

For our knowledge of Central Asia during the present century we are largely indebted to the military expeditions of Russia, while Siberia has been the object of numerous expeditions. Only a very few of the numerous expeditions to Siberia can be mentioned. In 1803-06 Krusenstern surveyed the Kuriles, Saghalien, and the East Siberia coast; 1805, Sannikof discovered the New Siberian and other islands; 1820-25, Wrangell explored the north coast of Asia and Kamtchatka; 1822,23, Anjou. N.W. Siberia and especially the Lower Lena; 1826, et seq. Ledebur, the Kirghiz Steppes, the Altai and Dzungaria. In 1828-30 Hansteen and Erman travelled through nearly the whole of Siberia. In 1843-45 Middendorf explored the lower Yenesei and the Amur. Siberia was traversed by Castren in 1845-49; and Dittmar explored Kamtchatka in 1851-54. The Lake Baikal region has been explored since 1854 by Radde, Meglitsky, and others. In 1868-70 Mardell and Neumann explored the Chukchi country. In 1877 the great preliminary survey of Siberia as far as Lake Baikal was concluded, and has since been supplemented by more detailed surveys in 1873-76 and following years; in more recent years the survey for the Trans-Siberian railway has led to a more accurate knowledge of the country. In 1877 Finsch and Brehm led an expedition from the Chinese border across Siberia to the Kara Sea. The various geographical societies in Siberia have done much for the exploration of the country, while the expedition of Nordenskjold along the north coast of Europe and Asia made numerous additions to existing knowledge, especially during its year's stay on the Chuckchi Peninsula. An expedition in the eighties under Bunge and Toll, stationed at the mouth of the Lena, made valuable contributions to the geography of the coast, and especially the New Siberian Islands. Among other important names connected with Siberian exploration are those of Radde, Radlof, Yadrintsef, and Bogdanovich. In 1896-97 Russian Government expeditions carefully explored the Siberian coast in the neighbourhood of the Yenesei, and made important changes in existing maps. In other parts of Russian Asia the expeditions have been bewilderingly numerous. One of the most fruitful among the earlier ones was that of HUMBOLDT in 1829 to the Urals, the Altai, and the Caspian region, resulting in the elaboration of a great system of Central Asian geography. He was accompanied by Helmerson, who with Baer compiled a vast work, not yet complete, on the Russian Empire and neighbouring lands. Abich's researches in the Caucasus and Armenia are classical, while Radde has through many years carried out his researches in the Caucasus as well as in other parts of Russian Asia. In 1857 Semenof explored Lake Balkash, Ala Tau, the Thian Shan, and Lake Issik-Kul, and in 1857-58 Severtsof the whole of the Aralo-Caspian basin. In 1868 and following years Fetchenko made his way through Turkestan to the Pamir plateau, and Kaulbars, in 1869, through Khokan to Issik-Kul. In 1860-62 the Caucasian region was carefully surveyed to Ararat.

In the seventh decade of this century a vast amount of work was done for the exploration of Central Asia, mainly in connection with Russian military advances. Of these we can only mention Fetchenko's in Russian Turkestan and Khokan (1868-71); Skobelef's strategically important journeys in the Transcaspian region (1871); Kostenko's exploration of the Lower Amu and Lake Aral; the great Amu-Daria expedition of 1874 under Stolzetof; 1874-76, Musketof's explorations in the Thian Shan; Skobelef's great expedition of 1876 during which Kostenko penetrated to the great Lake Kara Kul on the Pamir plateau; 1877-78, Severtsof's great expedition (accompanied by many specialists) over the Pamir to Rankul and the Alichur Pamir. Roborofsky's exploration of Mongolia, 1895-96. Other Pamir districts were explored in 1878 by Oschanin, and later still by Ney Elias, Bonvalot, Capus, Younghusband, Littledale, Lord Dunmore, Olufsen, Deasy, and others, resulting in a very complete knowledge of a highly interesting region. Important were Regel's travels in the Kuldja region in 1877 and following years. The surveys in connection with the Central Asian Railway added greatly to our knowledge of Asia as far as Bokhara, while the completion of the railway has afforded facilities to travellers and explorers of all grades.

The best known of recent Russian explorers in Asia is Prejevalsky. His great journeys were outside Asiatic Russia. In 1870 he passed through Mongolia to the country around Koko Nor, in North Tibet. In 1876 he led an expedition by Kuldja and the Ili Valley to the Tarim river, and thence to Lake Lob Nor, trying in vain to penetrate to Lassa by the Altyn Tag. In 1879 he led another expedition across the Chinese border at Zaisan, pushed through Saidan into Tibet, but was stopped 160 miles from LASSA. He visited the KOKO NOR, and explored the source of the HOANG-HO. In 1880 he once more traversed the GOBI desert to the source of the HOANG-HO, and again tried in vain to enter TIBET. On his return journey he made many important contributions to a knowledge of the KUEN LUN MOUNTAINS and their offshoots.

More recent expeditions to Central ASIA have been those of the brothers Grum-Grjmailo (1889), to the Eastern THIAN-SHAN; Peftsof (Prejevalsky's successor), to the MUSTAGH region, with journeys by members of his staff through the sand desert; Yadrintsef in Northern MONGOLIA; Bonvalot and Prince Henry of Orleans, south-east across TIBET to BURMA and TONG KING; they reached a point within 100 miles of LASSA. Littledale in 1893-94 traversed ASIA from BATUM to PEKING, making important discoveries in the ALTYN TAG range and the Upper HOANG-HO. In 1895-97 Chaffanjon crossed ASIA from the CASPIAN to the PACIFIC, especially exploring the AMUR district. Rockhill in his first journey from CHINA made valuable contribution to our knowledge of Eastern TIBET, and on his second journey approached to about 100 miles from LASSA. Bower from KASHMIR and LADAKH traversed TIBET from West to East, also approaching LASSA to within about 100 miles. Littledale in 1895 entered TIBET from the North and in his important journey approached within 45 miles from LASSA, proceeding westwards to LADAKH. In 1896 Wellby and Malcolm traversed TIBET from West to East along a northern route, and in 1897 Savage Landor endeavoured to reach LASSA from INDIA; he believes he was within a few days of LASSA. In 1896 Deasy explored Western TIBET, and in 1897-99 the PAMIR region and the country to the east of YARKAND. Kozloff has done a great deal of valuable work in Central ASIA in recent years. In 1899-1901, at the head of an important expedition, he thoroughly explored the CHINESE or MONGOLIAN ALTAI, the CENTRAL GOBI, and a considerable area of Eastern TIBET. Fetchenko has continued his investigations among the PAMIRS; in 1898 Bogoyavlensky conducted an expedition to the Upper AMU-DARIA.

Among important English expeditions to Central ASIA should be mentioned that of Shaw in 1868 across the KARAKORUM to YARKAND; that under Sir Douglas Forsyth in 1873 to KASHGAR and YARKAND, when the southern part of the PAMIR table-land was explored; Trotter's journeys from KASHGAR to the ARTYSH district and over the PAMIR to WAKHAN. In 1885 Carey journeyed through Chinese TURKESTAN, and along the northern frontier of TIBET, and in the following year Colonel Bell, and after him Younghusband, made journeys across Central ASIA to KASHMIR. The English and the native explorers attached to the Indian Survey have pushed (the latter especially) right into the heart of TIBET, as well as into other dangerous regions beyond the HIMALAYAS. During 1892-96 a young Swedish traveller, Dr Sven Hedin, traversed a great part of Central ASIA, he climbed Mount DEMAVEND in PERSIA, explored part of the PAMIRS and the KARAKORUM, and made several attempts to ascend MUSTAGH ATA. He crossed the TAKLA-MAKAN desert, explored the LOB NOR region, and made his way by PEKIN. In 1899 HEDIN set out for further exploration in the same regions, mainly with a view to solve some of its important hydrographical problems and explore its buried cities; in this he was eminently successful and finished by crossing TIBET from north-east to south-west. In 1900-01 Dr Stein conducted a survey of the country between Northern INDIA and KASHGAR, made important discoveries among the ruined cities of the TAKLA-MAKAN desert, and carried out explorations around the head waters of the YURUNG-KUSH or KHOTAN River. Other names connected with the exploration of Central ASIA during 1892-1902 are those of Roborofsky, Dutreuil de Rhins, Obrucheff. In 1894 Mr Curzon visited the glacier which gives origin to the two head-streams of the OXUS, in 1892-93 Conway explored the glaciers of the KARAKORUM, and in 1899 Freshfield the region around Kanchanjanga. In 1896-97 Glukhovsky made a careful survey of the OXUS.

Turning to Eastern ASIA we find Siebold pursuing his researches in JAPAN, 1823 and 1829. In 1844-46 Huc and Gabet pushed through CHINA and MONGOLIA as far as LASSA. Both Roman Catholic and Moravian missions have done service to geography on the Tibetan frontier as well as in LADAKH. Probably the most important contribution to the geography of CHINA during the century has been the work of Baron von Richthofen, who (1867-72) traversed a large extent of the country. In 1862 Blakiston surveyed the YANG-TSI-KIANG. In 1868 Ney Elias surveyed the new course of the YELLOW RIVER, and in 1872 made a journey through Western MONGOLIA. In 1877 Gill made his way overland from HANKOW to BATANG, on the border of TIBET. Still more important were the journeys of Baber, who, besides traversing the provinces of YUNNAN and SE-CHUEN, made many corrections on the old Jesuit maps. In 1895-96 Prince Henry of Orleans made a remarkable journey from TALIFU in YUNNAN to SADIYA in ASSAM, across the Upper Waters of the SALWIN and IRRAWADY, doing much to solve the troublesome hydrographical problem of this region. In 1898-99 Captain A. W. G. Wingate made a remarkable journey partly over new ground from SHANGHAI to BHAMO, and in 1900 the performance was repeated by a party under Dr Logan Jack, which traversed new routes in many districts of YUNNAN and SE-CHUEN. Further explorations in these provinces have been carried out by Mr Fred. W. Carey (1899) and a British survey expedition (1899-1900) including among its members Major Davies, Captain Watts Jones, and Captain C. H. D. Ryder who made Wingate's and Jack's journey in the reverse direction. Barclay Parsons in 1898-99 surveyed the country between HANKAU and CANTON. In 1895-97 Bonin made extensive journeys in South-Eastern CHINA, and in 1899-1900 crossed ASIA from PEKING to the CASPIAN. In 1896 Mrs Bishop traversed the valley of the YANG-TSI-KIANG to the borders of TIBET; she also made some important journeys in KOREA, with which the names of Carles, Campbell, and James are connected in recent years. In the summer of 1902 Campbell made a journey through little-known country in North-East MONGOLIA. As a result of repeated journeys in MANCHURIA Mr Turley was able in 1899 to prepare and issue an important new map of that country. A multitude of books of travel have been written about CHINA, but much remains to be done before we have an accurate knowledge of its geography, although the investigations of exploring parties sent out in quite recent years by European railway and mining syndicates have added much to our knowledge of the interior, as did also Mr Consul Bourne in 1898 when he accomplished a mission in the interior partly to ascertain its commercial possibilities. In connection with the YANG TSI-KIANG the names of Mr and Mrs Archibald Little deserve mention. In Eastern SIBERIA important researches have been carried out by the Jesup Expedition. The opening up of JAPAN has also led to the visits of many travellers, one of the most instructive being Mrs Bishop (Miss Bird), and one of the most thorough and scientific being Professor Rein. But the very careful survey made by the Japanese themselves within the past few years has afforded the materials for an accurate topography. In 1894 Mr Basil Hall Chamberlain visited the LU CHU ISLANDS.

The most important contribution to the geography of INDIA during the century has undoubtedly been the work of the Survey begun at the end of the previous century. The whole country is now accurately mapped, and a vast amount of information made available by the observations of the surveyors and of the explorers sent out to the border regions.

BURMA is being surveyed after a similar fashion, and has, like SIAM and the neighbouring region of the peninsula, been visited by many travellers during the century.

The French in TONG KING are opening up the country; between 1879 and 1895 Pavie superintended accurate surveys of large portions of Laos and Annam. Siam has been surveyed under the direction of James M'Carthy; similar work is being carried out under British direction in the Federated Malay States.

Wallace's residence in the Malay Archipelago for many years formed a chief contribution to a knowledge of that region, while the Dutch have done much for the territories under their jurisdiction. In 1896 Celebes was crossed by the cousins Sarrasin, who have conducted explorations in the island extending over several years. The officials of the British North Borneo Company have opened up their part of the island, while Mr Charles Hose has done much for a knowledge of the Sarawak territory. Of travellers in New Guinea there have been many during the latter part of the period especially. Among the more important are Michlucho Maclay, Beccari, Moresby, D'Albertis, Macfarlane, Lawes, Forbes, and Macgregor, the last having in 1890 ascended the Owen Stanley Range. The British and Germans are actively exploring their part of the island, but the great bulk of the interior is quite unknown.

The leading territorial changes in Asia during the century have been as follows:

First as to India—

The Carnatic was conquered by the British in 1800.

Lord Lake's campaigns, 1803-05, brought the North-Western Provinces under British rule. The new Districts were amalgamated with those previously acquired from the Nawab Wazir of Oudh into the "ceded and conquered provinces." This partition of Northern India remained till the Sikh wars of 1845 and 1848-49 gave us the Punjaub. In South-Eastern India Lord Wellesley's (1798-1803) conquests constituted the Madras Presidency almost as at this date. In South-Western India the Peshwa was reduced to a vassal of the Company.

At the close of the last Mahratta war in 1818 the dominions of the Peshwa were annexed to the Bombay Presidency, and the nucleus of the present Central Provinces was formed out of the territory rescued from the Pindáris.

In 1834 Coorg (Kurg) was annexed.

As a result of the first Sikh war of 1845, the Jaldander Doab, between the Sutlej and the Rávi was annexed.

Tranquebar and Serampur were purchased from Denmark in 1845. British Suizerainty over Kashmir was recognised in 1846.

The eight-years' rule of Lord Dalhousie, 1848-56, was distinguished by the acquisition of the Punjab as a British Province, 29th March 1849, and by the annexation, 20th December 1852, of Pegu (British Burma) to the Provinces of Arakan and Tenasserim acquired in 1826.

In 1849 the State of Sátára and in 1853 that of Jhánsi both lapsed to the British Government.

Under Lord Dalhousie the annexation of Oudh was also effected.

1858 dates the downfall of the East India Co. and the transference of the administration of India from the Company to the Crown.

Under Lord Lawrence's rule the Bhután Dwárs was annexed in 1864. In 1876 a treaty was made with the Khan of Kelat which gradually placed Baluchistan within the British sphere.

Under Lord Dufferin, who succeeded to the Viceroyalty in 1884, the authority of the Viceroy of India was by proclamation on the 1st January 1886, substituted for that of King Thebaw throughout Upper Burma.

In 1895 the Chin and Lushai Hills were incorporated in British India, and British Suzerainty extended over the Chitral region. In 1897 the Suzerainty over the Afridis and other tribes on the Afghan border was confirmed by a difficult campaign.

The only Portuguese possessions still remaining in India are Goa, Damau, and Diu, all on the west coast.

In the great French wars from 1793 to 1811, England wrested from Holland every one of her Colonies, and at present the Dutch flag flies nowhere on the mainland of India.

The only French possessions are now Pondicherri and 200 square miles round it.

By the definite treaty signed at Amiens, 27th March 1802, Ceylon was ceded to Great Britain, and in 1815 England assumed the complete sovereignty of the island.

In 1839 Great Britain annexed Aden, which has since been extended towards the interior, and the exact limits of which are now the object of the investigations of a mixed Commission. Perim was added soon after.

The Bahrein Islands in the Persian Gulf were taken under British protection in 1875.

Hong Kong was ceded by China to Great Britain in 1841, and by treaty with China in 1898, a portion of the mainland known as the Kaulung Peninsula was leased to Great Britain for ninety-nine years.

The Kuria Muria Islands were ceded by the Sultan of Muskat in 1854.

Of the Straits Settlements, Malacca was ceded by the Dutch to Great Britain in 1824, and in 1826 incorporated with Penang and Singapore. Protectorates were declared over Perak and Selangor in 1874; Sungei Ujong, 1885; the Negri Sembilan, 1889; Pahang, 1887; Johor, 1887. In 1895 these Malay States were confederated under a British Administrator.

In 1881 the British North Borneo Company obtained a charter securing their rights to an area of over 31,000 square miles in the north of the island, over which a protectorate was declared in 1888, and in 1889 the colony of Labuan was placed under the Company. Sarawak, a native state in the north-west of the island, was acquired by Sir James Brooke from the Sultan of Brunei. Various additions were made in subsequent years, and in 1888, Sarawak and the neighbouring sultanate of Brunei were placed under British protection.

Cyprus was occupied by Great Britain in 1878.

Other important annexations have been made by France in Asia during the century. Cambodia was taken under French protection in 1862; Cochin-China annexed 1861; Tong King, 1884. Annam declared a protectorate in the same year. By the treaty of 1893 France acquired all the territories belonging to Siam east of the Mekong, and on a strip of territory 25 kilometres on the west of the Mekong, France was permitted to establish stations. By an arrangement between Great Britain and France in 1896, the whole of the basin of the Menam was guaranteed to Siam; while on the remainder of Siamese territory, France in the east and Great Britain in the west, were left free to establish influence. By a treaty now awaiting ratification, dated 7th October 1902, France agreed to evacuate Chantabun, which she had occupied in 1893, and to allow Siam to resume sovereign rights in the 25 kilometre strip. In return Siam yielded the Laos province of Bassac and the old Cambodian province of Melouprey, and also gave France certain privileges in connection with the development of the Siamese portion of the Mekong Valley.

The advances of Russia in Asia during the present century have been of an extensive character. By the incorporation of Georgia in 1802 Russia obtained an outlying territory south of the Caucasus on the upper course of the Kur. Next, 1813, Russia acquired the land of Daghestan and Shirwan on the Caspian Coast from the mouth of the Terek to the mouth of the Kur. The Persian and Turkish wars gave Russia, 1828-29, the Armenian land of Erivan as far as the Araxes, Mingrelia, and Imeritia. By the treaty of Adrianople, 14th September 1829, Turkey surrendered Circassia to Russia; the Berlin treaty, 1878, has since added to Transcaucasian, Russia Ardahan, Batum, and Kars.

To the esst of the Caspian a new province, Turkestan, was created 14th February 1805.

To the south-east followed the subjugation of Khokan which was formally annexed to Russia as Ferghana, February 1876. Samarkand was taken by Kaufmann and secured by treaty, November 1868. On the pretext that the Khivans had aided the rebellions Kirghiz, a Russian expedition advancing to Khiva compelled the Khan to sign a treaty putting the Khanate under Russian control. In 1873 the state of Bokhara was by treaty made practically a Russian dependency. The Turkoman tribes east of the Caspian have been annexed.

In 1881 Russia captured Gok Tepe; in 1884 Merv surrendered to Russia, and the same year she concluded a convention with Persia for the cession of Sarakhs.

In 1885 Komaroff attacked the Afghans at Ak Tapa near Panjdeh, after which the present Afghan boundary was settled between the British and Russian Governments. In 1895 the delimitation of the spheres of Great Britain and Russia was carried out in the region of the Pamirs.

A Russian Transcaspian railway now runs through Bokhara from Charjui on the Oxus to a station within a few miles of the capital and thence to Samarkand; the distance from Charjui to the Russian frontier station of Kata Kurghan being about 186 miles. Samarkand is also connected by a telegraph line with Bokhara.

Kuldja, a revolted province of China, was seized by Russia in 1871, but restored by treaty in 1879.

As a result of the war between China and Japan in 1894-95, the island of Formosa was ceded to the latter.

By a treaty with China in 1896, Russia obtained the right of building and constructing railways through Manchuria, and liberty to exploit its mineral wealth. In 1898 Russia obtained a lease from China for twenty-five years of Port Arthur and Ta-lien-wan, on the north of the entrance to the Gulf of Pe-chi-li. At the same time Great Britain occupied on a similar footing the port of Wei-hai-wei, on the opposite side of the entrance. In the end of the previous year Germany occupied the port of Kiao-Chau, and in January 1898 obtained a ninety-nine year's lease of the town, harbour, and outworks. By a treaty in 1896, Russia and Japan took Korea under their joint protection, but since then Russia has left Japan a free hand, though in 1900 she secured a concession of a port and station on the south coast. As a result of the war between the United States and Spain in 1898, the Philippine Islands have been ceded to the former.

AFRICA.

At the beginning of the century Central Africa was virtually a blank from the Sahara to the confines of the Cape. During the first half of the century exploration was mostly devoted to the northern and broader section of the Continent. The African Association (founded 1788) was most active in this work; in 1830 it merged into the Royal Geographical Society. In 1805 Mungo Park was murdered after traversing the Niger down to Bussa. In 1819, Oudney, Clapperton, and Denham crossed from Tripoli by Murzuk, and discovered Lake Chad. In 1816-21 De Grey and Dochard reached Say, on the Niger, which in 1830 was traced from Bussa down to its mouth by R. Lander. In 1825-26, Laing reached Timbuctu from Tripoli. Richardson, who had already explored the Northern Sahara, led a great expedition (1849) lasting 5½ years, which, crossing the Sahara, explored the whole of the Lake Chad region, the neighbouring Sudan States, and the Niger. Richardson died, and the command devolved on Barth, his great work being the most important contribution to a knowledge of this region. This was supplemented by the explorations of Rohlfs (1864-66) by Ghadames, Murzuk, Wadai, to the Niger, and on to the Guinea Coast. More important was the expedition of Nachtigal (1869 et seq.) by Tibesti and Kuka round Lake Chad, and into the Central Sudan States. All this work was supplemented by expeditions from the south. In 1832 Laird and Oldfield explored the Niger and Benue. In 1854 and following years Baikie did a vast deal for the exploration of the lower and middle Niger and the Benue and for the establishment of British influence from Lokoja as a centre. In 1879 Ashcroft ascended the Benue beyond Yola; in 1885 Joseph Thomson ascended the Niger to Sokoto, Flegel having done much for a knowledge of the river in the preceding years; in 1889 Major Macdonald ascended the Kibbe, a remote tributary of the Benue, while the officials of the Royal Niger Company have done much not only for the exploration of the whole of the lower river and its tributaries, but for the geography of the region generally. In 1891-92 Lieut. Mizon pushed his way up the Niger and Benue, but did not add much to geographical knowledge. In 1901 Captain Lenfant made his way up the Niger Rapids and carefully studied the course of the river.

From the Senegal side the French have been actively pushing their way inland since the beginning of the century, their expeditions ranging from the Senegal on the north to the Guinea Coast on the south, and as far as the Upper Niger on the east. In 1827-28 René Caillie journeyed from Kakandy to Timbuctu and thence to Marocco; while in 1880 Lenz repeated the journey in the opposite direction. Mage and St. Quintin in 1863-66 explored the Niger from Sansandig to Segu; in 1878 Soleillet reached Segu on the Niger and has been followed by Gallieni, Desbordes, and others. The sources of the Niger were discovered in 1879 by Moustier and Zweifel. In 1887 Caron navigated the river in a gunboat from Bammako to the port of Timbuctu. In 1887-89 Binger traversed a large part of the region between the coast and the great bend of the Niger. Since the occupation of Timbuctu by France our knowledge of the Upper and Middle Niger region has been greatly extended. A careful survey of the Upper Niger was made in 1894-95 by Lieuts. Bluzet and Hourst, revealing a vast system of lakes and marshes connected with the river. In 1896 they descended the Niger from Timbuctu.

In 1895 Gentil left Loango for Lake Chad, and succeeded in conveying a steel launch to the lake. Being appointed Civil Administrator of the Shari region he again approached the shores of Lake Chad in 1899-1900, in accordance with a comprehensive scheme for the occupation of the territories France had acquired round the lake by treaty with the European Powers. Near the lake he was joined by M. Foureau who, after doing much in successive journeys for the exploration of the Sahara, had in 1898-1900 succeeded in crossing the great desert from north to south, in company with Major Lamy and a large following. From Senegal, moreover, had made its way eastward to Lake Chad a third expedition, in its early stages under the command of Captains Voulet and Chanoine, and subsequently commanded by Lieutenant Joalland. Combining, the three expeditions overthrew the Sultan Rabah. Since then Great Britain and Germany have taken steps to occupy their spheres of influence around Lake Chad, and numerous official expeditions are adding largely to our knowledge of the region. In the British sphere may be mentioned Colonel Morland, acting under General Lugard; in German territory Lieu- tenant Dominik and Lieutenant Colonel Pavel have been active; while after the return of the French expeditions referred to above, the name of Colonel Destenave was specially connected with the French territories to the east and north of LAKE CHAD. A British-French Commission is now (January 1903) in WEST AFRICA for the purpose of delimiting the frontier between NORTHERN NIGERIA and the FRENCH SUDAN, from SOKOTO eastward to LAKE CHAD, and a British-German Commission is about to delimit the frontier between NIGERIA and the KAMERUN. To the south of LAKE CHAD, in the SHARI region, many surveys have been carried out, and Captain Roefler is said to have established the existence at certain times of the year of a continuous waterway between the SHARI system of rivers and the sea, by way of the BENUE and its tributaries and the NIGER.

From the GUINEA COAST much has been done for the interior countries by British explorers, two prominent names being those of Burton and Winwood Reade. Both German and French captains, Delcœur, Monteil, d'Albeca, Grüner, as well as Lugard and other British officers on the part of ENGLAND, have (1893-1900) opened up new routes from the GUINEA COAST and the NIGER to the north and eastward to the river itself. The frontier between SIERRA LEONE and LIBERIA is being officially surveyed and demareated. The German officials in TOGOLAND have made a very thorough study of the geography and resourses of that territory. The GOLD COAST and the IVORY COAST in particular among WEST AFRICAN colonies, are being carefully surveyed. Since the German occupation of the KAMERUN in 1884, much has been done to explore the LINTERLAND of that territory by, among others, Kund, Tappenbeck, Wolf, Passorge, Uechtritz, Schimmelpfennig, and Stein, the last having been very energetic in opening up the country for some years past.

Turning north to MOROCCO we have Jackson in the early part of the century; Hooker and Ball, 1871; Colville, Foucauld, 1883-87; Joseph Thomson, 1889; Doutté, 1901; both in MOROCCO and other parts of NORTH AFRICA Fischer has carried out important investigations for several years past. The occupation of ALGERIA and TUNIS by FRANCE has led to a thorough exploration of those countries and the NORTHERN SAHARA by many French expeditions. In 1894 W. B. Harris and Delbel visited TAFILET. In 1891-93 Colonel Monteil starting from SENEGAL crossed the UPPER and LOWER NIGER to SAY, and proceeded by SOKOTO, KANO, and KUKA to LAKE CHAD, and thence across the SAHARA to TRIPOLI.

Of the multitude of expeditions in the great NILE region we can only refer to a few. In the early years of this century travellers reached as far south as DARFUR and even WADAI, while in 1805-09 Salt visited ABYSSINIA. The efforts to extend Egyptian domination southwards led to many important expeditions. KHARTUM was founded in 1823 and became a centre for further enterprise. In 1853-58 Petherick penetrated to the NIAM-NIAM country on the west, and GONDOKORO on the south. The expeditions which in the fifties and sixties explored the BLUE and WHITE NILES and the BAHR-EL GHAZAL are too numerous to detail; when Sir S. Baker went out in 1863-64 exploration had been pushed to within measurable distance of the NILE sources. Baker completed his work by discovering the ALBERT NYANZA.

From the east coast it was only when the missionaries Krapf, Rebmann, and Erhardt, entered on their travels in 1846, that serious exploration began. In 1848 Rebmann discovered KILIMA NJARO and saw KENIA afar off.

Rumours of great lakes and mountains in CENTRAL AFRICA had been coming out for some years. Burton and Speke had already been together in SOMALI LAND (1854) when the former succeeded in visiting HARAR. In 1857-58 Burton and Speke forced their way into the heart of AFRICA, and discovered the first of the rumoured great lake TANGANYIKA. On their return journey Speke discovered VICTORIA NYANZA, the great reservoir of the NILE. In 1860 Speke and Grant pushed northwards from ZANZIBAR to VICTORIA NYANZA and discovered the outlet of the NILE, following the river to KHARTUM and meeting Baker by the way. Thus the NILE problem was solved in its main features. Since then the filling in of details has been vigorously prosecuted. In 1868 Schweinfurth made his way through the DJUR country on the UPPER NILE into the NIAM-NIAM and MONBUTTU countries, coming upon the mysterious WELLÉ in 3° 35′ N. lat., since proved by Junker, Grenfell, Van Gele, and others to be the MOBANGI tributary of the CONGO. Once more in 1869 Baker penetrated to the Lake regions; while Gordon and his successors, men like Gessi, Marno, Chaillé Long, Mason, Emin Pasha, Casati, Prout, and others have completely explored the UPPER NILE region and the ALBERT NYANZA. Junker, during his many years' stay in that country added largely to the information collected by Schweinfurth.

Since the occupation of the Sudan by the British, after the defeat of the Mahdi, much more has been done by British officers and others to lay down the true course of the UPPER NILE and also its tributaries, especially the SOBAT. In 1899-1901 the country through which runs the eastern frontier of ABYSSINIA was carefully surveyed in the north by Major Gwynn—further south by Majors Austin and Bright. These latter pushed from the SOBAT to LAKE RUDOLF, and made valuable observations in the country to the south, between RUDOLF and LAKE BARINGO.

In ABYSSINIA Salt was followed by Rüppell (1833), the D'Abbadies (1837 et seq.), Beke (1841-43), Von Heuglin (1852), the English expedition of 1867-68, Antinori and Beccari (1870 et seq.), Piaggia (1871), Bianchi (1879), and many other Italians, who have penetrated into ABYSSINIA and accumulated a mass of valuable information concerning an interesting country.

More recently much has been done in ABYSSINIA and in the region between that and the NILE by Bonchamp, Bent, Weld Blundell, Powell Cotton, Crosby, Hugues le Roux, Duchesne Fournet, and other travellers, some of whose names will become apparent as we proceed.

In the region south of ABYSSINIA and north of KILIMA NJARO, many expeditions have been busy. Von der Decken in 1861-62 explored the KILIMA NJARO region and ascended the JUBA river; in 1865 Wakefield opened up much new country, ascending KILIMA NJARO to the snow-line; Stanley in his great expedition across the Continent (1874-77) traced the southern feeders of the VICTORIA NYANZA, circumnavigated the lake, explored UGANDA and discovered the southern LAKE ALBERT, which he further explored during the Emin Pasha Relief expedition (1887-89), when he discovered MOUNT RUWENZORI. Since Stanley's visit to UGANDA a host of missionaries have invaded the country, making it still further known. In 1883-84, Joseph Thomson explored MASAI LAND, as did Fischer about the same time; H. H. Johnston visited KILIMA NJARO in 1884, and Meyer ascended to the summit, 1890. The expeditions of the British East Africa Company greatly increased our knowledge of the country. In 1892 the survey for a railway from MOMBASA to UGANDA gave precision to our knowledge of the region traversed. In 1890-92 Captain Lugard was in the service of the Company, and in 1898 a considerable section of the railway had been constructed. Between the coast and UGANDA he carefully surveyed much of the country, and while Administrator in UGANDA, he made expeditions westwards into UNYORO and to LAKES ALBERT and ALBERT EDWARD, which produced important geographical results. Since the territory was taken over by the Government, further expeditions to the west have increased our knowledge, notably those undertaken by Sir Harry Johnston while H.M. Special Commissioner in the PROTECTORATE. Special reference may also be made to the work of Major Delmé Radcliffe in the Nile Province. Good work is being done between the coast and Lake Victoria. The German explorers Baumann and Neumann have done much valuable work in the region east and south-east of Lake Victoria; and throughout German East Africa generally a great deal of exploring work, both official and unofficial, has been carried out in recent years. Gregory's expedition to Mt. Kenia has produced valuable scientific results; he ascended the mountain to a height of 13,000 feet, while in 1899 Mackinder succeeded in reaching the summit and mapped the whole mountain. Stuhlmann, partly in company with Emin Pasha (who in 1892 was killed by the Arabs) coming from the south-east filled in considerable blanks in our knowledge of the country and its rivers lying between Tanganyika, Victoria and Lake Albert. Scott Elliot in 1893-94, starting from Mombasa went by Uganda to Mt. Ruwenzori which he ascended to over 12,000 feet and made a special study of its botany. Proceeding southwards he traversed the unvisited region between Lake Albert Edward and Tanganyika, and came out by Lake Nyasa and the Zambezi. In 1900-01 a Belgian-German Commission surveyed the country to the north of Lake Tanganyika, through which runs the frontier separating the Congo Free State from German East Africa. A valuable survey of the country between Lake Nyasa and the Victoria Nyanza was carried out between 1897 and 1901 by Beringer. In 1891 Captain Dundas navigated the Tana and visited Mt. Kenia and next year ascended the Juba to the rapids above Bardera. Farther north James penetrated from Berbera 500 miles south into the Somali country and De Besme still farther in 1890. Paulitschke visited Harar, 1888; Teleki with Lieut. von Hohnel penetrated from the south to Lake Samburu (Rudolf) 300 miles N.E. of Victoria Nyanza. In 1892 Von Höhnel accompanying Mr Astor Chanler did some good work in the north of the Tana. In 1885-88 Borelli from Obock passed by Ankober, Antotto, and Harar through Galla Land, following the river Omo which feeds Lake Samburu. Ruspoli, Robecchi, Bottego, Grixoni, and other Italian explorers have traversed Somaliland in different directions. Captain Swayne has made several journeys to the south and west. In 1894-95 Dr Donaldson Smith penetrated from the north to Lakes Rudolph and Stefanie, added considerably to our knowledge of the hydrography of the Webbe system of rivers and of the country north of Rudolf, and came out by the Tana river. In 1899-1900 he returned to Somaliland, and succeeded in crossing from the north of Lake Rudolf to Fort Berkeley on the Upper Nile. In 1897 Cavendish also penetrated to Lake Rudolf, and traced its west shore which had also been visited by Bottego. Part of the region lying between Lake Rudolf and the Nile was traversed in 1898-99 by Col. MacDonald's expedition from Uganda, and much careful mapping was done; Major Austin carefully laid down the west coast of the Lake. About the same time Captain Wellby, coming from Abbyssinia, visited Lakes Stefanie and Rudolf, and continuing made his way north-west to the Sobat. In 1899-1900 Rudolf was visited by Harrison, also coming from Abyssinia. In 1901 Neumann made the journey from the country north of Rudolf to the Sobat, after doing useful work in Abyssinia in company with Baron Erlanger. In the following year the Upper Nile at Nimule was reached from the same point by an important expedition under the Vicomte du Bourg de Bozas, who had previously explored the plateau country of Southern Abyssinia, and is now (January 1903) completing the transcontinental journey by way of the Congo Free State and the French Congo. In 1901 Count Wickenberg, whose name is also associated with Somaliland, journeyed through Southern Abyssinia to Lakes Stefanie and Rudolf, and thence returned through British East Africa to the coast at Lamu. In 1902 Butter started on an expedition which had for one of its objects the surveying of the border country between British East Africa and Abyssinia.

The only serious attempt on the part of the Portuguese to penetrate the Continent in the early part of the century was the expedition of Monteiro and Gamitto from Tete on the Zambezi north-west as far as Lunda to the capital of the Kazembé on Lake Moero. On the other side Tuckey explored the Congo as far as the Yellala Falls in 1816. Bowdich in 1817 contributed to a knowledge of the Gabun and the Ogowé. After the French setttlement on the Gabun, activity in this region increased. Du Chaillu in 1850 and 1863 made his famous discoveries in the region watered by the Ogowé followed by Winwood Reade and Burton in 1861-63. In 1860-62 Burton explored the Kamerun. Under Compiegne and Marche (1873-74) but above all De Brazza (1876 et seq.) the whole of the Ogowé and Gabun region down to the Middle and Lower Congo, has been very completely explored. In 1891 an expedition under Crampel, pushing from the Congo to Lake Chad, was massacred. Crampel's work was continued northwards by Dybovski and Maistre. During 1896-98 the French, under M. Leotard and Captain Marchand, pushed northwards from the Upper Mobangi towards the Upper Nile; Marchand succeeded in reaching Fashoda, and finally made his way through Abyssinia to Jibutil. Much geographical information about the French Congo is now being collected by the concessionaire companies.

Farther south Graça in 1843-44, from Loanda reached the Muata Yamvo's Kingdom and Lake Mwero, while between 1848 and 1855 Ladislaus Magyar traversed the region between the Lower Congo and Upper Zambezi, exploring the extensive country watered by the Kuanza. Since then the route to Bihé, Lunda and Lake Mwero has been frequently traversed, among others by the Germans Bastian, Poggé, and others, Capello and Ivens, 1877-80, Serpa Pinto at the same date when he crossed the Continent by the Zambezi, and the Transvaal to Natal a Portuguese expedition in 1883-88, not to mention many missionaries and traders.

Farther south must be noted Galton's expedition to Damaraland, 1850-51; Andersson in Damaraland, Namaqualand, and on to Lake Ngami, 1853-54, followed in the same region in 1854-66 by Costa Real, Smut, Green, and others. Coates Palgrave traversed Damaraland and Namaqualand in 1877, and since the Germans took possession, their missionaries and traders have added somewhat to our knowledge. To the journeys of Count Pfeil, Von François, Dove, and others, as well as to the reports of the Colonial officials, we owe much fresh information on this part of the Continent.

In 1840 Livingstone landed at the Cape. Before that date various explorers, missionaries, and traders had pushed the limits of the known beyond the Orange River to Southern Bechuanaland and the borders of the Matabele Country—such as Barrow, 1810-14; the missionaries, Campbell, Steedman, Andrew Smith, Moffat; the hunters, Harris (1835) and Gordon Cumming (1845). In 1849 Livingstone discovered Lake Ngami. A year later he reached the Zambezi. In 1852 he set out on his great journey; reached Linyanti in May 1853, Loanda, May 1854; returned across the Continent, following the Zambezi to the Victoria Falls (November 1855), reaching Quilimane in May 1856. Two years later Livingstone returned to Africa in command of the great Zambezi expedition, during which he explored the Lower Zambezi, the River Shiré, re-discovered and laid down with accuracy Lake Nyasa, explored the Rovuma, and added much to our knowledge of the region around. He returned to England in 1864. All this work of Livingstone has had important results. On the south of the Zambezi his footsteps were followed by explorers, missionaries, and traders, too numerous to refer to individually, and the Geodetic Survey of South Africa is now making the country still better known. Baines's explorations in Matabeleland in 1869, and Mohr's at the same time, led ultimately to the gold rush to that country, and to the hunting expeditions of Selous, who during the last twenty years has done so much for the Zambezi region. Erskine explored the Limpopo in 1868, and the work of Paiva d'Andrade in the Manica territory during the past fifteen years must be acknowledged. The officials of the British South Africa Company have during the few years they have been at work added largely to our knowledge of the country, as did Sir Charles Warren's expedition of 1885 of Bechuanaland. Matabeleland and Mashonaland are being opened up and much of them surveyed by the officials of the Company, while a railway now connects them with the Cape.

On the north of the Zambezi Livingstone was followed by missionaries and traders, who opened up the country round Lake Nyasa and between that lake and Tanganyika. Livingstone once more left for Africa in 1865. Landing at the Rovuma, he crossed to Lake Nyasa and thence to Tanganyika. During these, his last journeys, he explored the Lualaba, Lakes Bangweolo and Mwero, which form the upper waters of the Congo; saw the Lualaba again 2 miles wide at Nyangwé, extended our knowledge to Tanganyika, visited Manuema, and reached the solution of some of the most important problems in African hydrography before his death in 1873. Since then the region on the south and west of Lake Nyasa has become virtually a British colony. Under its first administrator, Sir H. H. Johnston, the country has been opened up, and much of it carefully mapped. The region between Lakes Nyasa and Bangweolo has been explored by Joseph Thomson, Alfred Sharpe, Dr Cross, M. Foa, Weatherley, Codrington, Smitherman, Grey, and other explorers and missionaries (in particular the French "White Fathers" in recent years), while the British South Africa Company directly and through subsidiary companies is actively surveying the country with a view to settlement; the Company's administrators also have added largely to our knowledge of the outlying parts of the country. On the north of Lake Nyasa the Germans are doing similar work. In 1896-97 Major Lugard explored the Lake Ngami district.

In 1896 Major Gibbons did some careful work on the Upper Zambezi and its northern tributaries. He returned in 1898, and during two years made further careful exploration of the same region, proceeding northwards by Lake Tanganyika, and descending the Nile to Cairo. In traversing Africa from south to north he was preceded by Captain Ewart Grogan, who, accompanied by Mr Arthur Sharp, made his way from the Zambezi via Tanganyika and the Lake Kivu region, Lake Albert Edward and the Nile to Cairo, being the first to accomplish this feat. At Lake Kivu he found Dr Kandt, who during three years had been studying this region. He was followed by Mr Moore, who with his companions made a study of the biology of Tanganyika, and proceeding northwards ascended Mt. Ruwenzori. mapped its glaciers, and studied its botany and geology.

Meantime Central Africa was crowded with a host of explorers. In 1871 Livingstone was succoured by H. M. Stanley, and together they explored the north of Tanganyika. Among the other relief expeditions sent out the most important was that under Cameron, who (1873-75) crossed the Continent from Zanzibar to Benguela, adding greatly to our knowledge of the country to the west and south-west of Tanganyika, Meantime (1874-77) Stanley was once more in Africa on the great expedition already referred to. From the Albert Nyanza he came south to Ujiji on Lake Tanganyika, which he circumnavigated. Crossing from Ujiji to Nyangwé on the Lualaba, he left that place on 5th November 1876, traced the river through its whole course and identified it with the Congo, at the mouth of which he arrived in August 1887. Stanley's discoveries may be said to have led to the partition of Africa. Shortly after he arrived in Europe he returned to Africa to found the Congo Free State. Since then the river itself has been further explored, its enormous tributaries north and south have been navigated, and the blank of fifteen years ago largely wiped out. Specially in connection with this work may be mentioned the name of the Rev. George Grenfell, who has carefully mapped in great detail the whole of the vast stretch of the river between Leopoldville and Stanley Falls. In 1892-97, numerous expeditions, mostly of a military character have been sent out by the Free State, with which the names of Delcommune, Dhanis, Hinde, Lothaire, Stairs, Kerckhoven, and others are connected. Hinde established the connection of the Lukuga with the Lualaba, as the outlet of Lake Tanganyika. The courses of other tributaries of the Congo have been laid down, while in the north our knowledge of the region between the Congo and Lake Chad and the Nile has been greatly extended. The German African Association, founded 1873, helped in this work, as several of its explorers did good work to the south of the Congo, as well as on the coast region to the north. Stanley supplemented his own work by penetrating, in pursuit of Emin Pasha (1887-89), the forests on the Aruwimi-Ituri to Lake Albert Nyanza, and making the discoveries already referred to. Joseph Thomson's expedition (1879-80) did much for our knowledge of the mountainous region on the north shore of Lake Nyasa, as well as for the country between that and Tanganyika, and Urua and other countries on the west of that lake. A few years later Reichard explored the Upper Lualaba, and Wissmann crossed the continent twice from the west coast, passing many of the southern tributaries of the Congo before reaching Nyangwé. Since Germany began her annexations in 1884, she has shown increased activity in exploration in East and West Africa. In 1894-95 Count Götzen crossed the continent from east to west, discovering that the westernmost of the Mfumbiro Mountains is a volcano, visiting Lake Kivu and coming out by the Congo. In 1896-98 Foa crossed the continent from the Zambezi to the Congo, a journey which was repeated in 1898-1900 by Lemaire.

In Madagascar though much has been done during this century by British and French explorers—notably M. Alfred Grandidier, whose investigations in the island extend back more than a quarter of a century, and whose researches have in recent years been supplemented by the explorations of his son—much still remains to be done; no doubt as the island is now a French possession its exploration will be seriously undertaken.

In 1898 an English and an Austrian expedition explored the island of Socotra.

It has only been possible to refer to some of the more important expeditions; the result has been to fill up the great blank which existed at the beginning of the century from the confines of the Cape to the Sahara. But it has been covered merely by a network of routes; much remains to be done to fill up the meshes. But the great features of the continent are now well known.

As to the political partition of the continent, that may be very briefly told. At the beginning of the century Turkey was dominent over Egypt, Tripoli, and Tunis; Algeria was practically independent, and Morocco much as it is now. The Imams of Muskat were lords of Zanzibar and much of the coast north and south. Portugal had her possessions on the west, and a precarious footing on the east, her actual power being confined to her towns on the coast. She had also the Cape Verds, a patch on the Guinea Coast, Prince's and St. Thomas' Islands. In Senegambia the dominion of France did not stretch much beyond the coast, except along the Senegal. Spain held Fernando Po and one or two patches on the opposite coast. British South Africa was confined to Cape Colony, which did not extend beyond the Orange River on the west and the Great Fish River on the east. The Colonies of Gambia, Sierra Leone, and the Gold Coast were the only other British possessions.

Early in the century Egypt began to push southwards. Nubia and part of the Sudan were annexed in 1820. Shortly after, KHARTUM was founded and further annexations carried out. Under Baker and Gordon, the Egyptian domain was extended to the ALBERT NYANZA, and included KORDOFAN and DARFUR. The whole country south of WADI HALFA was practically abandoned in 1885, as a result of the revolt of the Mahdi.

ALGERIA was annexed by FRANCE in 1830 and TUNIS in 1881. In SENEGAL FRANCE continued to push her conquests into the interior as well as north and south. This resulted in the creation in 1890 of a new province, RIVIÈRES DU SUD, to the south of SENEGAL proper. By the Anglo-French arrangement of 5th August 1890, GREAT BRITAIN recognised as within the French sphere the whole region to the south of TUNIS and ALGERIA up to a line from SAY on the NIGER to BARRUWA on LAKE CHAD. Out of this SPAIN claimed a region extending from CAPE BLANCO to the confines of MOROCCO, of about 250,000 square miles. The British factory near Cape Juby was in 1895 ceded to the Sultan of MOROCCO for £50,000. In 1896-97, French parties occupied several positions on the north bank of the Middle NIGER, which for several years had been included in the British sphere. A joint commission which sat in PARIS agreed to a fresh delimitation of the FRENCH and BRITISH spheres on the RIVER NIGER, by which the SAY-BARRUWA line was abandoned, and concession elsewhere made to FRANCE to the extent of 150,000 square miles. FRANCE took possession of the GABUN in 1843. By the BERLIN Agreement of 1884, French territory now extends along the right bank of the CONGO from BRAZZAVILLE to the mouth of the MOBANGI; north to 4° N. latitude; and an almost straight line to the coast along the 2nd degree N. embraces the GABUN— total area, 250,000 square miles. Since 1884 FRANCE has had possession of territory on the west and east of the British GOLD COAST COLONY—GRAND BASSAM and ASSINIE, GRAND POPO and AGOUÉ, PORTO NOVO and KOTONOU—25,000 square miles in all, with protectorates, divided into two colonies, the GOLD COAST group and BIGHT OF BENIN group. In 1894 she practically annexed DAHOMEY. In 1891 she declared the stretch of coast (100 miles) lying between GRAND BASSAM and LIBERIA within her protection. By an agreement between GREAT BRITAIN and GERMANY in November 1893, a line was drawn from YOLA on the BENUE to the southern shore of LAKE CHAD as a boundary between the spheres of the two States, the region to the east being allotted to GERMANY. In February 1894 FRANCE and GERMANY came to an agreement, by which the latter conceded to FRANCE the territories east of the SHARI RIVER up to 10° N. lat. The boundary between the two spheres runs westward along the parallel to the meridian of BEFUM, and S.W. and S. to KABO on the SANGA about 2° N. lat.; thence by the old boundary lines to the coast. In 1899 FRANCE reorganised the whole of her territories between the west coast and LAKE CHAD, consolidating and rearranging them into four great groups; in October 1902 the protected area previously attached to SENEGAL, together with the MILITARY DISTRICTS of the SUDAN, was formed into "the TERRITORIES of SENEGAMBIA and the NIGER." Earlier in the same year the FRENCH CONGO Colony and the CHAD TERRITORIES were reorganised. By arrangement between FRANCE and SPAIN in 1900, the latter conceded a considerable portion of the area claimed by her in the Western SAHARA, and in return obtained from FRANCE recognition of a large territory on the MUNI River, in the GABUN region. In March 1899 an agreement was concluded between FRANCE and GREAT BRITAIN by which the claim of the former to the SAHARA were delineated on the East by a line which left the LIBYAN desert and the country to the south, including DARFUR, to British influence. By the defeat and route of the Mahdists in 1899 the whole of the old Egyptian SUDAN was re-occupied under British suzerainty. On the other side in 1900 FRANCE extended her occupation from ALGERIA as far as the Twat country, over which MOROCCO professed to have some claim.

On the other side the island of NOSSI-BÉ was annexed in 1841, MAYOTTA, 1843; the COMORO ISLANDS declared a protectorate 1886, MADAGASCAR 1887. It was only by the unilateral agreement of January 1896 that MADAGASCAR recognised the supremacy of FRANCE. In 1897 the Queen was dethroned and defeated. OBOCK, at the mouth of the RED SEA, was annexed in 1864, and formed the nucleus of what is now the Somali Coast Protectorate. The total possessions and protectorates of FRANCE in AFRICA cover 3,330,000 square miles.

Except a few administrative changes the principal event in British West African Colonies has been the acquisition of LAGOS in 1861, and its gradual extension so as to include the YORUBA country; it extends from the BENIN RIVER to KOTONOU. The GOLD COAST protectorate has been extended so as to embrace 16,000 square miles; and as a result of a military expedition in 1895-96, the ASHANTI country became virtually a British protectorate. By an agreement between FRANCE and GREAT BRITAIN in January 1895 the interior limits of SIERRA LEONE were defined, and the area of the colony much restricted; the boundary follows the watershed of the NIGER. In 1894 DAHOMEY became a French protectorate. The Royal Niger Company obtained its charter in 1886, and the Oil Rivers were formed into a commissionership in 1891; the total British territory along the NIGER and BENUE embraces 500,000 square miles, including SOKOTO and its dependencies. On 1st January 1900, the territories of the Royal Niger Company were taken over by the British Government and placed under a commissioner as Northern NIGERIA, the Oil Rivers Protectorate being now known as Southern NIGERIA.

Between 1803 and 1806 the CAPE COLONY reverted to HOLLAND, but became British again in the latter year, and was finally conferred on England by the Peace of 1815. KAFFRARIA was formally incorporated in 1865. BASUTOLAND became British in 1868, and was annexed to the CAPE in 1871, but has since come under direct imperial rule. The TRANSKEIAN territories were annexed in 1877 and 1885; WALFISCH BAY in 1877; GRIQUALAND WEST in 1880; and PONDOLAND in 1894. NATAL was formally annexed to the British Crown in 1843 and declared a separate colony in 1856. The territory known as BECHUANALAND lying between CAPE COLONY on the south and 22° on the north was declared a British protectorate in March 1885 (since extended to the ZAMBEZI); on 30th September 1885, the portion to the south of the Molopo river was made a Crown colony (43,000 square miles, since extended to 71,000 square miles). In November 1895 the Crown colony was annexed to CAPE COLONY. An order in Council of 4th July 1890, places the parts of South Africa north of BRITISH BECHUANALAND, west of the TRANSVAAL and MATABELELAND, east of the German protectorate, and south of the ZAMBEZI, under the government of BRITISH BECHUANALAND. ZULULAND was formerly declared BRITISH territory in 1887, and was annexed to NATAL in 1897, as was also in January 1903 certain portions of the late TRANSVAAL REPUBLIC. MATABELELAND was declared to be within the British sphere in 1888 and in 1889 a charter was granted to the British South African Company. On the east the sphere is limited by the MANICA plateau, on the south by the LINPOPO, on the north by the ZAMBEZI and a line running E.S.E. from ZUMBO to the MAZOË; area about 100,000 square miles. By the Anglo-Portuguese arrangement of 11th June 1891, on the north of the ZAMBEZI, ENGLAND has a patch on the east of the SHIRÉ, north of the RUO. With the exception of a patch between the SHIRÉ, the LOANGWA, and the ZAMBEZI, British territory extends from LAKE NYASA to the boundary of the CONGO FREE STATE and the western limit of the BAROTSE country on the west, the ZAMBEZI on the south, and the line between LAKES TANGANYIKA and NYASA on the north; a limited area in the neighbourhood of LAKE NYASA forms the BRITISH CENTRAL AFRICA PROTECTORATE, the remainder being under the jurisdiction of the British South Africa Company.

As a result of the war between GREAT BRITAIN and the BOER REPUBLICS, in 1899-1901, the TRANSVAAL REPUBLIC and ORANGE FREE STATE were annexed to the BRITISH EMPIRE; the former as the Transvaal Colony, and the latter as the Orange River Colony.

In 1888 a charter was granted to the British East Africa Company. By the Anglo-German agreement of 1886 and 1890 the British sphere is bordered on the south by a line from the mouth of the Umba north-west to the east shore of Victoria Nyanza. It extends north to the Jura river and along that to the limits of the Italian sphere in Galla Land; westward to the borders of the Congo Free State and the watershed of the Upper Nile. In 1890 Great Britain acquired the protectorate of the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. In 1895 the charter of the British East Africa Company was withdrawn, and its territories placed under the direct administration of the Imperial Government. In 1887 England proclaimed a protectorate over the Somali coast from Tajurah Bay to 49° E. long. By an arrangement with Italy in 1894 the boundaries of the British territory in the interior of Somaliland were defined, the area embracing 75,000 square miles. In 1897 Mr Rennell Rodd concluded a treaty with Abyssinia, by which about 12,000 miles in the south-west of British Somaliland was ceded to the latter. By a treaty signed in April 1902, the frontier between Abyssinia and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan was defined. Since 1883 Egypt has practically been under British control, and during 1896-98 a successful campaign under British leadership has been carried on against the Mahdists, who have been thoroughly defeated and driven out of Omdurman and all their stations east of the Nile; the river has been occupied by Egyptian troups as far as Fashoda. The total area of British Africa amounts to about 2½ million square miles.

In 1884 Germany acquired a footing on the Gold Coast, on the coast of the Namaqualand, and the Kamerun. Togoland now extends to 33,000 square miles, the Neutral Zone of Salaga, having by agreement been divided between Great Britain and Germany. In 1897 France and Germany settled by agreement the boundary between German Togoland and the French sphere. The Kamerun extends from the Niger territories on the north to the French Gabun on the south, and inland to 15° E.; area about 130,000 square miles. This area was further increased by the Anglo-German agreement of 1893 referred to above. By arrangement between Germany and Britain (1884-90) German S.W. Africa extends from the Kunene to the Orange River and inland to 20° E. as far as 22° S.; thence to 21° E. as far as the Chobe and Zambezi; area 342,000 square miles. In 1885 Germany obtained a footing in East Africa and by arrangements of 1886 and 1890, her sphere extends between the British sphere on the north, the Rovuma and the line between Lake Nyasa and Tanganyika on the south, Lake Tanganyika and the Congo Free State on the west and the Indian Ocean on the east; area, 345,000 square miles. Total German Africa, 932,000 square miles.

Italy took possession of Assab Bay at the mouth of the Red Sea in 1880. Her claims were afterwards extended along the coast from 18° 20′ N. to 12° 30′ N., including Massowah and its territory. In 1889 territory was acquired on the east Somali coast, north of the Juba and south of Ras Hafun, By convention of 1889-90, Italy claimed the protectorate of Abyssinia and Shoa, and by an Anglo-Italian arrangement of 1891, her African sphere extends along the north bank of the Juba and thence round by the southern boundary of Shoa and the boundary between Abyssinia and the former Egyptian Sudan. The Abyssinian Government did not acknowledge the Italian protectorate, and in 1895-96 Italy attempted to maintain it by force of arms but was defeated. By the treaty of Addis Abeba (1896) the whole of the country south of the Wareb, the Belesa, and the Muni rivers was restored to Abyssinia, which was recognised as an absolutely independent power. By this treaty the Italian sphere in Somaliland was confined to a strip of country on the coast, 180 miles in breadth.

The Congo Free State was constituted as a result of the Berlin Congress of 1884-85, under Leopold, King of the Belgians, as Sovereign. Its area is about 900,000 square miles. Its boundaries are defined by Convention with various Powers from 1884 to 1894.

The republic of Liberia was founded in 1847, and ten years later was joined by the neighbouring Negro republic of Maryland (founded in 1854). By an arrangement with France, August 1894, the Cavally River became the eastern limit of Liberia, while a block of Liberian territory on the N.E. intervenes between Sierra Leone and Samory's Kingdom.

The Portuguese possessions in East and West Africa have been restricted by the various agreements referred to.

Such are the leading territorial changes, so far as European Powers are concerned, in Africa, during the present century.

AMERICA.

In North America the admirably organised Government Surveys of the United States and Canada have done so much during the century for an accurate knowledge of the Continent that the work of early exploring expeditions has been to a large extent superseded. A large area of the Canadian Dominion has in this way been surveyed and mapped, and the work is being rapidly completed. In the neighbouring republic there is not only a great Federal Survey as well as a Coast Survey, but most of the States carry out Surveys of their own. The work of the Federal Survey has been mainly west of the Mississippi, and concerning that extensive region a vast amount of information has been accumulated. It may be of interest, however, briefly to refer to some of the leading expeditions that have added to our knowledge of North and Central America.

The first great expedition of the century was that of Alexander von Humboldt, who in 1803, on his return from South America traversed Mexico from west to east. In recent times the Government geographer Garcia Cubas has produced excellent maps of the country accompanied by memoirs dealing with its geography. In 1804-06 Lewis and Clarke explored the Upper Missouri basin and the Columba River. In 1819-20 Long undertook the first scientific exploration of the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi valley, and in 1825 the region south of the great lakes and round Lake Winnipeg. In 1819 Franklin explored the Coppermine River, with Richardson and Back, and in 1825 descended the Mackenzie and explored the north coast east and west.

In 1820 Schoolcraft, and in 1823 Beltrame, explored the northern United States and the sources of the Mississippi. Between 1830 and 1840 Catlin visited nearly all the Indian tribes. In 1833-35 Back explored the plains of the Great Fish River, and about the same time Dease and Simpson surveyed an unknown part of the Northern Coast. Rae (1846 and following years) explored the N.E. coast, as also the Mackenzie and Coppermine Rivers. In 1857-58 Palliser explored large tracts of British North America, and determined the existence of practicable passes across the Rocky Mountains within British territory, a discovery of great importance in connection with Trans-Canadian railways. The Surveys for the railway, as also for those which cross the United States have added very largely to our knowledge of the geography of these countries. In 1862 Lord Milton and Cheadle opened up extensive new regions on the Red River. Petitot (a missionary) in 1862-74 traversed and mapped the whole of the Mackenzie region. In 1898-99 Hanbury explored the country between Chesterfield Inlet and Great Slave Lake, and in 1901-02 continued his march to the north coast of the Dominion, returning by way of Great Bear Lake. In 1865 Dall explored the Alaska coast, and has been followed by various expeditions (three in 1890-91) which have traced the Yukon, surveyed the shores and islands, and attempted to ascend Mt. St. Elias, which was ascended by Topham for 11,000 ft. (1891), Russell to 14,000 ft., and the Duke of the Abruzzi in 1897 to the summit, 18,060 ft. An expedition equipped by Harriman did useful work along the shores of Alaska in 1899. Among travellers in Central America may be mentioned Moritz Wagner and Scherzer (1853-55), Brenchley and Remy (1855, et seq.) Khol (1856-58), Dolfüs (1864-66), Seebach (1863), Seemann (1864), Gabb (Costa Rica, 1873 76), Stoll (Guatemala, 1878-83), Lumholtz (North-West Mexico, 1890-98). The surveys for the Panama and Nicaragua Canals have contributed to the geography of Central America, large areas of which are, however, still unexplored.

In South America the Argentine Government has been laudably active in exploring and roughly surveying its extensive territory; though this survey-work is of a preliminary character, and not to be compared to that of the United States, still on the whole the country is fairly mapped. Brazil, Uruguay, Chile, Peru, which have considerable railway systems, have in connection with them carried out a certain extent of survey work, but a very considerable area of South America still remains unexplored. In the early part of the century Humboldt and Bompland travelled over and investigated the geography and natural history of a large area of equatorial South America, Venezuela, the Orinoco, Grenada, Ecuador. In 1810 et seq. Eschwege crossed Brazil several times, and in 1815-17 Prince Max von Neuwied explored the coast regions. Immediately after, Spix and Martius, with several other specialists carried out extensive explorations in the region of the Amazons and Rio Negro. In 1826-33 D'Orbigny and Pöppig's extensive travels did much for a knowledge of the geography and natural history of Brazil, Paraguay, North Patagonia, Chile and Peru—Pöppig, as also Pentland (1826), exploring a considerable section of the Andes. Pentland also spent some time in Bolivia, while about the same time King and Fitzroy were surveying Patagonia and the west coast of Chile. Between 1830 and 1850 much exploring work was done in S. America. In 1833 Darwin was wandering in Patagonia and the Rio Negro; in 1834-36 Smith and Lowe were in the Andes and followed the Ucayale, Maranon, and Amazon down to the ocean. In 1838-43 Tscudi explored Peru, and again in 1857-59 Brazil, the La Plata States, Chile, Bolivia, and Peru; Seemann, in 1848, Peru and Ecuador; in 1849 Von Bibra, Chile and Brazil, the latter having been traversed in various directions in 1842 et seq. by Prince Adalbert of Prussia. In 1843-47 the great French expedition under Castelnau made extensive explorations in Brazil and Paragua, crossed the Andes to Peru and Bolivia, and followed the Amazon down from near its sources to the Pacific. In 1835 and following years Schomburgk made a very thorough exploration of Guiana; followed between 1849 and 1868 by Appun, and later in British Guiana by Brown, Im Thurn, and others, and in French Guiana by Crevaux and Coudreau. In 1850 and following years Burmeister travelled in the central provinces of Brazil and also the Argentine Republic. In 1853-56 Page explored the La Plata and Paraguay. In 1852-54 and 1861 Markham did good work in Peru, and we are indebted for much of our knowledge of Chile to Filippi, whose activity extended from 1853 down to quite recent years. From 1848 to 1859 Bates was busy in the Amazon region. In 1862-69 Chandless actively explored the northern tributaries of the Amazon, and in 1865 Agassiz visited a large area of Brazil, his work being continued by Hart. Raimondi did much for the geography of Peru and Bolivia between 1850 and 1866. Excellent work was done by Reiss and Stübel in 1868-76 in Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, and Bolivia. They ascended Cotopaxi. Various other travellers explored the Andes of Colombia and Ecuador in the seventies and eighties. Those of Ecuador were explored by Whymper in 1879-80; he ascended Chimborazo twice, and also scaled some of the other high Andean peaks. In 1897 Mr E. A. Fitzgerald's expedition ascended Aconcagua; 23,000 feet, and in 1898 Conway reached the summit of Illimani. In the same year Stöpel ascended Mt. Orizaba in Mexico. 18,330 feet. In 1892-98 Pando did much valuable work in Bolivia, while in 1894-96 Colombia was explored by the Count de Brettes. In 1897 and following years André explored the Caura regions of Venezuela, and in 1901 Baron Erland Nordenskjöld, and party carried on investigations in the region between the Argentine and Bolivia. In 1869 Musters explored Patagonia. In the last ten years the Argentine and Chile have been active in exploring both Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego. In 1896 Otto Nordenskjöld explored Tierra del Fuego and Patagonia. In the eighties and the nineties Moreno and his staff surveyed a large area of Patagonia and the Argentine section of the Andes, while under Steffen and others the Chileans did a similar service on the Chilean side of the disputed boundary.

Im Thurn ascended Roraima in British Guiana in 1884, Simons resided for several years in Columbia in the eighties, made several careful surveys, as did R. B. White. Before this Simson crossed the Andes from Guayaquil, exploring some unknown regions on their eastern slopes. Wells spent most of the years 1868-84 in Brazil surveying and exploring from Rio Janeiro in the south to Maranham in the north. More recently (1886 et. seq.) the brothers Von den Steinen have explored the Xingu and its tributaries, which in 1896-97 was further explored by Coudreau, Ranke, and Meyer. The Challenger in 1876 and the Alert in 1878-82, as also the French Expedition of 1883-84 did much for Tierra del Fuego and the Straits of Magellan.

The following are the principal territorial changes in Canada during the century. In the beginning of the century the Dominion consisted of Upper and Lower Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. They were united by Act of Parliament in 1867, which made provision for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North-west Territories and Newfoundland. Newfoundland has still kept aloof. In 1869 the North-west Territories were purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company; out of this the province of Manitoba was formed and admitted into the Dominion 1870; followed in 1871 by British Columbia and in 1873 by Prince Edward Island. A portion of the North-west Territories was in 1882 divided into four districts,—Assiniboia, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Athabasca.

In the United States,—Ohio, extensively settled in 1788, was admitted into the Union in 1802. Louisiana, restored to France in 1801, was purchased from Napoleon in 1803. Indiana, included in Ohio till 1801, was constituted a territory in 1809, and admitted into the Union in 1816. Mississippi, settled in 1716, was incorporated as a state in 1817. Illinois, acquired by the British 1763, was constituted a territory in 1809 and admitted as a state in 1818. Alabama, originally part of Georgia, was organised into a state in 1819. Maine became a State of the Union in 1820. The boundary line between the British and the United States territories was settled by the Ashburton treaty, 9th August 1842.

On the 31st October 1803 the U.S. Congress by an Act authorised the President to take possession of Louisiana which included the present territory of Missouri. In 1804 Congress divided the territory into two portions. The northern part, Upper Louisiana, was taken possession of in March 1804. In June 1812 Missouri was organised as a territory and admitted to the Union 1820. Arkansas, purchased from France in 1803, was established as a separate non-Indian territory in 1819 and received into the Union 1836. Government surveyors appointed to inspect the lands of Michigan with a view to their settlement by the soldiers of the war of 1812 reported unfavourably and largely, for this reason Michigan was left behind and not admitted into the Union till 1837. Florida, ceded by Spain to the United States in 1828, was admitted as a State in 1845. Texas revolted from Mexico 1838, was acknowledged an independent State 1840, admitted into the Union 1846, seceded 1861, submitted 1865, and re-admitted to State rights 1870. Iowa, organised as a territory 1838, was admitted into the Union 1846. Wisconsin, organised as a territory in 1836, was admitted into the Union 1848. California, which came under the power of Mexico in 1823, became virtually independent 1836, was occupied by the U.S. army 1846, ceded to the United States 1848, and made a Sovereign State 1850. Minnesota, first largely explored 1817 and 1823 by Major S. H. Long, was organised as a territory 1849 and admitted into the Union 1857. New Mexico was taken from Mexico in 1846, and organised as a territory in 1850. In 1863 Arizona was detached and made a separate territory. Part of New Mexico was added to Colorado in 1867. A dispute arising in 1845 between Britain and the United States respecting the mutual boundary of Oregon was settled by treaty in 1846, and Oregon was admitted as a State in 1859. Kansas, included in the immense tract of land purchased by the United States from Napoleon in 1803, was in the hands of various Indian tribes down to 1854, when it was organised as a territory. It was admitted into the Union 1861, when Eastern Virginia seceded from the Union 1861, Western Virginia declared for the Union, and was admitted as a separate State 1861. The first settlement in Nevada was made in 1850. In 1861 it was organised as a territory, and in 1864 admitted as a State. The first settlement by whites in Nebraska was made in 1847. It constituted a portion of the immense "Louisiana" territory purchased from France in 1803. It was organised as a territory in 1854, and admitted a State 1867. Alaska was purchased from Russia in 1868 and created a territory. Colorado was organised as a territory in 1861 and proclaimed a State 1876. Dakota was divided into North and South Dakota and created into two States in 1890, when Washington territory was also admitted as a State; Idaho, Wyoming, and Montana having been admitted as States in 1889; Utah was admitted in 1896. The district of Oklahoma was made a territory in 1890.

When the century began Mexico and Central America, and the whole of South America except Brazil, was under the dominion of Spain; Brazil being subject to Portugal. Paraguay declared independence 1811. Brazil became an independent kingdom 1815, an empire 1822, a republic 1889. In 1895 Brazil obtained from the Argentine a part of the Missiones territory amounting to 3800 square miles. Chile became independent 1818; Mexico 1821; Guatemala, which included the other Central American States, 1823; Bolivia declared its independence of Peru 1824, assumed the name of Bolivia in 1825; lost her coast territory to Chile 1880. Chile in 1895 ceded the port of Mexillones to Bolivia, and Paraguay ceded a strip on the Upper Paraguay reaches. The Spaniards were expelled from Peru in 1826; in 1880 she lost the provinces of Tarapaca and Tacna to Chile. The Argentine Republic became independent in 1816, and Uruguay seceded as an independent State from the La Plata Confederation in 1826. By treaty between the Argentine Republic and Chile in 1881 the latter recognised the right of the former to all Patagonia east of the crest of the Andes, including the eastern part of Tierra del Fuego. In 1839 the various Central American republics declared their independence of each other. The republic of Colombia (formed of Venezuela, Ecuador, and New Granada) declared its independence in 1819, separating in 1831 into the three seats just named, New Granada in 1863 assuming the name of Colombia. In 1824 Britain obtained possession from the Dutch of Essequibo, Berbice, Demarara, now known as British Guiana. The precise boundary between British Guiana and Venezuela had, however, never been settled, and in 1895 the United States intervened on behalf of Venezuela, with the result that in 1899 the Court of Arbitration appointed for the purpose decided upon a definite boundary line. In 1895 a boundary dispute between Mexico and Guatamala was settled by the cession of the disputed territory to Mexico. In September 1900, the President of the French Republic fixed the boundary between Colombia and Costa Rica. In December 1900, the President of the Swiss Federal Council settled a dispute of long standing relative to the frontier between French Guiana and Brazil. The Chile-Argentine Boundary, which had been submitted to the arbitration of the British Government, was laid down in an award of King Edward VII's, delivered November 1902. In 1896 Nicaragua, Salvador, and Honduras constituted themselves into the Republica Major de Centro-America, for the purpose of foreign relations; but in 1898 the Confederation was dissolved. In 1898, as a result of the war between Spain and the United States, Puerto Rica was annexed by the latter, which also compelled the evacuation of Cuba by Spain. By the Peace Convention of December 1898, Cuba was relinquished by Spain, and though nominally independent, it is held in military occupation by the United States, which actually controls all branches of the administration. The United States in 1898 also annexed the Hawaiian Islands.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

The exploration of the coast of Australia was completed by King in 1817-24, and by the Beagle in 1837-43; since then special surveys of part of the coast have been carried out by Her Majesty's ships. The exploration of the interior was begun immediately after the founding of Botany Bay in 1788. The officers of the colony pushed their way inwards, so that by 1840 the Murray, the Darling, the Murrumbidgee, and other rivers had been traced, and the country explored far beyond the Blue Mountains. Eyre discovered Lake Torrens in 1839. West Australia was founded in 1829, and during the next fifteen years the coast regions were explored north and south and efforts made to push into the interior. In 1841 Eyre made his famous journey from Adelaide to King George's Sound. In 1844 Sturt attempted to cross the continent from Adelaide to the Gulf of Capentaria, and penetrated to within 200 miles of the centre of the continent. In 1856 Gregory explored the Victoria river in the north, and the east side of the Gulf of Carpentaria. In 1860 M'Douall Stuart crossed to within 245 miles of the northern shore. The ill-fated Burke and Wills did succeed in crossing, but perished on the return journey. In 1862 M'Douall Stuart also succeeded in crossing along the line on which the telegraph was laid down in 1872. M'Kinley afterwards crossed the continent twice. In 1873 Warburton crossed from the telegraph line to the west coast. The brothers Forrest made several expeditions from Perth, discovering much new country in West Australia; and in 1874 John Forrest crossed from Perth to the telegraph line and Adelaide. In 1872 and subsequent years Giles, Gosse, and others starting from the telegraph line and Adelaide penetrated westwards to the south of the routes of Forrest and Warburton. while other expeditions explored North Queensland and the York Peninsula. Between 1864 and 1878 several expeditions under Forrest and others explored the north-west of Australia, discovering extensive grass lands and gold fields. During the past ten years several expeditions have been out every year, so that about one-third of the continent is well known, while a fair idea has been obtained of the general features of the remainder. In 1892 a great expedition was sent out by Sir Thomas Elder to the centre of the continent, and in 1893-94 a great scientific expedition organised by Mr Horne did much valuable scientific work. The discovery of gold in Western Australia has led to a great increase in our knowledge of the vast territory. In 1896 the Calneist expedition set out to explore the interior of Western Australia, but ended in disaster; in 1896-97 Carnegie made an extensive journey from south to north in the same region. In 1901 Prof. Baldwin Spencer conducted an expedition into the heart of South Australia, and Mr F. S. Brockman at the head of a Government Survey party did useful work in the Kimberley District of Western Australia.

The exploration of New Zealand has been mainly carried out by the well-organised survey under Sir James Hector and the late Sir Julius von Haast. Through the efforts of the survey the country has been to a large extent mapped. The coasts of New Zealand and the surrounding reigons were fully surveyed by Captain Stokes and Byrn Drury between 1848 and 1858.

In 1825 Moreton Bay was settled as a part of New South Wales, and in 1859 became the Colony of Queensland. The Colony of Western Australia was founded in 1829. Port Phillip was colonised in 1835, and in 1851 was constituted the Colony of Victoria. The colonisation of South Australia was begun in 1836. In 1825 Tasmania was separated from New South Wales and made a district colony. In 1893 Western Australia became a self-governing colony.

In 1840 New Zealand was formally ceded to the British Crown, and remained attached to New South Wales till the following year. The colony was originally divided into eight provinces, but by an Act of 1876, the county system was adopted. A Bill was passed by the Imperial Parliament in 1900, by which the Colonies of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, and Tasmania are authorised to form a federation, somewhat similar to the Dominion of Canada.

In 1848 the Dutch proclaimed their sovereignty over the western half of New Guinea. In 1884 the eastern half was divided between Great Britain and Germany, the sovereignty of the Queen being proclaimed over the British section in 1888.

THE OCEANS.

Many great expeditions sent out by England, France, Germany, and America have explored the islands of the Pacific during the century, while numerous private explorers have done good work. We can only give a list of the leading expeditions. In 1804 Krusenstern explored the Marquesas; and in 1814 and following years Kotzebue visited the Marshall group. In 1818 Freycinet visited New Guinea, the Ladrones, and the Hawaiian Islands; in 1819 et seq. Bellingshausen surveyed the Paumotu group; in 1823 Duperrey was among the Society Islands, the Marshall and Gilbert Islands, and visited New Guinea. In 1825 Dumont D'Urville was in New Britain, New Guinea, Manikoro, and the Ladrones, and in 1838, several other island groups. Beechy in 1826 discovered the Bonin Islands, and in 1828 et seq. Lütke visited the Carolines In 1835 et seq. Fitzroy (with Darwin) visited the Society Islands. The great American expedition under Wilkes in 1839 and following years explored most of the Pacific Ocean. Other expeditions which contributed to a knowledge of the various groups were those of Belcher 1840, Blackwood 1845, Brenchley and Kemp 1850, Erskine 1849 et seq. Denham 1853 et seq. the Austrian exqedition under Wullerstorf-Urbair in 1858 and following years. The Fiji Islands were visited by Seemann 1860, Graffe 1865-98, Goodenugh 1874-75, 1876-77 by Parkinson. Since then His Majesty's ships have been surveying in the Pacific at frequent intervals, and since the annexations by France and Germany much good work has been done in Caledonia, Tahiti, the Bismarck Archipelago, the Marshall Islands, and elsewhere, by the officers of these governments. Both for the exploration of the Pacific and the Atlantic Oceans, and for a knowledge of their island groups, a vast amount of good work was done by the Challenger expedition in 1872 and following years, while the United States Government has done much for the exploration of the North Pacific and the Gulf of Mexico. In 1881 and following years Guppy in the Lark added greatly to our knowledge of the Solomon Islands, which was supplemented by Woodford in 1886-89. In 1884-98 the Prince of Monaco carried on extensive researches in the Atlantic. In 1898-99 a German expedition in the Valdivia carried out important researches in the Atlantic, to the edge of the Antarctic, and north through the Indian Ocean to Sumatra. In 1899-1900 Professor A. Agassiz carried on oceanographical work in the Pacific in the U.S. steamer Albatross, and during the same period a Dutch expedition in the Siboga explored the little-known seas of the Malay Archipelago. In 1900 a German scientific expedition conducted explorations along the coast of German New Guinea and among the adjacent islands. In recent years an Austrian Government expedition has explored the Mediterranean and the Red Sea, while good work has been done in the North Atlantic by the combined efforts of England, Germany, and Norway.

The various deep-sea expeditions have given rise to a new department of physical geography, Oceanography or Thalassography, which investigates the nature and contour of the ocean bed, the ocean currents both on and below the surface, the chemical constitution of the sea water, and the forms of life which prevail therein.

The Marquesas Islands were annexed by France in 1841; New Caledonia in 1854; Tahiti and Morea 1880; Tubuai, Taumotu and the Gambier Islands in 1881; Wallis Islands 1887; Raratoa 1888.

Fiji was annexed by Great Britain in 1874.

In 1884 Germany annexed New Britain (Neu Pommern) and neighbouring groups (Bismarck Archipelago) and certain of the Solomon Islands; and in 1885 the Marshall Islands. In 1899 Germany acquired from Spain the Caroline, Pelew, and Marianne Islands, except the island of Guam, which was ceded to the United States in 1898. Great Britain also annexed certain of the Solomon Islands, and extended her protectorate over others in 1898. In 1898 the Hawaiian Islands were annexed by the United States. In 1899 the Samoan Islands were divided between Germany and the United States while a British protectorate was declared over the Tonga Islands.

POLAR REGIONS.

There was great activity in Arctic exploration during the first half of the century. In 1818 Sir John Ross explored Baffin Bay, and Buchan endeavoured to penetrate to the north of Spitzbergen. In 1819-25 Parry explored Lancaster Sound and the islands to which it gives access, including Melville Peninsula, and also tried to pass through Hudson Bay. In 1826 Clavering reached the east coast of Greenland in 76° N. lat. In 1827 Parry reached 82° 43′ N. lat. to the north of Spitzbergen. In 1829-32 James Ross was on the Boothia Peninsula, and discovered the Magnetic Pole. On the mainland in 1819-32 Franklin, Richardson, and Back were exploring the coast from the Coppermine River. Back supplemented this in 1833, and 1837-39 Dease and Simpson, and ten years later Rae, contributed much to a knowledge of this coast and of the opposite islands, the latter also doing much for the geography of the region round Repulse Bay. In 1845 Franklin's ill-fated expedition in the Erebus and Terror sailed to make out the North-West Passage, and was lost on the south of King William Island. For ten years, expedition after expedition was sent out to discover traces of Franklin, the result being not only the discovery of the fate of Franklin and his men, but of many new coasts and new islands to the north of America. One of these expeditions under M'Clure actually completed the North-West Passage. In 1853-55, and 1860-61 Kane and Hayes pushed northward in the Smith Sound direction, and in 1871 Hall succeeded in reaching 82° 16′. In 1857 the Swedes began to send scientific expeditions to Spitzbergen; these were continued for years, latterly under the direction of Baron Nordenskjöld, and have added greatly to our knowledge of Spitzbergen and of the seas and islands around. In 1875-76 Nordenskjöld penetrated through the Kara Sea to the Yenesei, and in 1870-79 he succeeded in sailing along the north coast of Asia and Europe, and so accomplishing the North-East Passage, adding largely by the way to a knowledge of this part of the Arctic regions. In 1869-70 Koldewey wintered on the east cost of Greenland, and reached 77° N. lat. In 1872-74 Peyer and Weyprecht, sailing to the north east of Novaia Zemlia, discovered Franz Josef Land, since further explored by Leigh Smith. Under Nares the Alert and Discovery were sent out by Smith Sound by the British Government in 1875. They wintered in Lady Franklin Bay 82° 27′ N., explored the north coasts of Greenland and Grinnell Land, while Captain Markham succeeded in pushing as far north as 83° 20′ 26″. Since then Greely (1881-85), in command of a United States expedition, wintered in Lady Franklin Bay, explored the interior of Grinnell Land and the north coast of Greenland, one party succeeding in reaching a mile or two beyond Markham's furthest. In Greenland itself Norkenskjöld in 1883 succeeded in penetrating about 150 miles across the inland ice to the south of Disco; a year or two later Peary inland for about 100 miles, while in 1888 Nansen crossed from the east to the west coast in the southern part of Greenland. The Danes for some years past have been diligently exploring the east coast, a section of which was carefully mapped by Nathorst in 1899 and by Amdrup in 1898 and 1900. In 1902 a Danish expedition under Mylius Erichsen started work on the west coast of Greenland; it is chiefly devoting its attention to the study of the Eskimo, but has already made rectifications in the existing maps. Early in the century Lütke explored Novaia Zemlia, and in more recent years both English and Russian expeditions have added to our knowledge of these islands. Other expeditions to the north of Asia are referred to under Asia. In 1892-95 Peary crossed the inland ice and explored the north coast of Greenland, and in 1898 started on a further expedition to explore the north coast, and, if possible to reach the Pole. He was absent four years but did not succeed in his object. He completed, however, his exploration of the north coast of Greenland, made many valuable observations, and by attaining a latitude of 84° 17′ N. surpassed all previous records in the Western Hemisphere. At present Peary intends to renew his attempt to reach the North Pole in the summer of 1903. In 1893 Nansen, in the Fram, entered the ice near the New Siberian Islands, and for three years the ship drifted N.N.W., S.W., and S. to Spitzbergen, reaching 86° N.; Nansen and Johansen left the ship in about 84° N., and reached 86° 16′, the highest northern record. In 1894-97 Jackson explored Franz Josef Land. In 1897 Andrée started from the north of Spitzbergen to make his way across the North Polar area in a balloon. Up to date (1903) nothing has been heard of him. In the summers of 1896 and 1897 Conway and party explored the interior of the main island of Spitzbergen, and in 1898 Nathorst accomplished important explorations in the same region. In 1898 Sverdrup left in the Fram for the North of Greenland with a view to reach the Pole; he returned in 1902, having penetrated Jones Sound and obtained results of the greatest importance. Not only was practically the whole of the west coast of Ellesmere Land surveyed, but large islands to the west, whose existence had not previously been suspected, were discovered. In 1898 Wellman reached Franz Josef Land with the same object in view, but returned in the following year without accomplishing much. In 1899 the Duke of the Abruzzi left in a well-equipped expedition for Franz Josef Land with a view of pushing northwards; he returned in 1900, one of the expeditions being reported to have reached 86° 33′ N. latitude, and thus exceeding Nansen's furthest by about 18 miles. In 1901 Mr Ziegler, an American millionaire, despatched an expedition under Mr Evelyn Baldwin, with the object of reaching the North Pole from Franz Josef Land. Those islands were reached, but the expedition found it necessary to return in 1902. In 1900 Baron Toll started on an expedition to search for the somewhat doubtful Sannikoff Land north of the New Siberian Islands, and is still engaged in exploring work in that region. A Canadian expedition with the North Pole for its objective is now being organised by Captain Bernier. In the spring of 1903 Captain Roald Amundsen, a Norwegian, proposes to set out for the North Magnetic Pole. He is prepared to devote several years to the expedition, and hopes to return by way of the North West Passage.

In the Antarctic regions Biscoe in 1830-32 discovered Enderby Land and Graham Land in 67° S.; in 1837-40 Dumont D'Urville reached 66° 30′ S. lat., discovering Adélie Land on the Clarie coast. In 1839 Balleny discovered the Balleny Islands, 66° 44′ S., and Sabrina Land, 65° 10′ S. The great Antarctic expedition, 1839-43, under Sir James Ross, reached 78° 4′ S. and 187° E.; discovered South Victoria Land, with its lofty volcanoes Erebus and Terror, and the great ice wall which barred all access to the interior of the land. Since then until quite recently little was done for Antarctic exploration, the Challenger only venturing to touch the circle. In 1892-95 several small expeditions, mainly for whaling purposes, proceeded to the Antarctic, one of which under Captain Kristensen, reached as far as 74° south. In 1897 a Belgian expedition proceeded to the Antarctic, mainly for deep-sea exploration, and wintered in the ice at a not very high latitude, returning to Europe in 1899. In 1898

Borchgrevink sailed in the Southern Cross, and reached Cape Adare in South Victoria Land, where he wintered on the mainland and collected valuable meteorological, magnetic, and geological and other data. In February 1900 he sailed round the great bend, by Mounts Erebus and Terror, landing at one or two places, and succeeded in making a land journey of some 15 miles, which took him a short distance beyond Ross's furthest.

Well-equipped British, German, and Swedish expeditions entered the South Polar area in the Antarctic summer of 1901-02. The field of labour of the British expedition, which is under Captain Robert Scott, R.N., is primarily Victoria Land and Ross's great ice barrier, to the south of New Zealand. The German expedition (under Dr. Drygalski) had for its starting point Kerguelen Island, and will work south of the Indian and Atlantic Oceans. The Swedish expedition (Dr. Otto Nordenskiold) is at work to the south of South America. In 1902 an expedition to support Captain Scott was despatched from this country, and a Scottish expedition under Mr Bruce left to work in the same section of the Antarctic region as the Swedish expedition.

THE CLASS-ROOM ATLAS

OF

PHYSICAL, POLITICAL, BIBLICAL, AND CLASSICAL GEOGRAPHY.

Edited by EDWARD F. ELTON, M.A.,

Sometime Scholar of Corpus Christi College, Oxford; Assistant Master in Wellington College, Berks.

This new Atlas has been produced at very considerable expense. All the Maps are entirely new, and everything possible has been done to have a work in keeping with the times. The Atlas is intended for use in the great Public Schools and Middle Class Schools and Colleges, and the Publishers trust that their efforts will be appreciated.

The Atlas consists of 48 Plates, which contain, with Insets, upwards of 80 Maps.

These deal with Physical, Political, Commercial, Classical, and Biblical Geography, besides giving 7 Charts of Climate and a Geological Map of the British Isles.

It is hoped that the needs of all sections of a school—classical side (with the possible exception of candidates for a University scholarship), modern side, and army class—are adequately provided for.

Attention is particularly drawn to the following features:—

In the numerous Physical Maps the elevation of land is very effectively shown by contour lines, aided by colour.

Every effort has been made to reduce the number of names in the Political Maps.

On every Map outside Europe an Inset of the whole or part of the British Isles has been engraved to give an idea of comparative size.

The colour of a country and of its dependencies is the same throughout the Atlas.

For the convenience of teachers who use Test Maps in their work the Series of

CLASS-ROOM TEST MAPS

(41 in all) has been engraved. These Test Maps consist of the Political, Orographical, Biblical and Classical Maps.

These are precisely identical with the Maps in the Class-Room Atlas in all respects, save that all names are omitted.

They may be used as Test Maps, or pupils may insert on them those details which the teacher wishes particularly to emphasise.

PRICE ONE PENNY EACH MAP.

The Twentieth Century Atlas

OF

POPULAR ASTRONOMY

By THOMAS HEATH, B.A., First Assistant Astronomer, Royal Observatory, Edinburgh.

The Publishers are pleased to announce the completion of this important Work. The letterpress is written in a popular way, so that those who take up the subject for the first time will have no difficulty in understanding it. Both the Author and the Publishers trust that their efforts in producing an interesting work on a science which all should know something of will be appreciated.

PREFACE.

THE progress of Astronomy during the century recently closed has exhibited itself in two distinct forms, the march of scientific discovery and the increasing interest shown in the science by the general public. The discovery of the spectroscope and the application of photography to astronomical research have opened up new and intensely interesting branches of the science, while the older and more strictly mathematical department has been no less vigorously pushed forward. The second form of progress alluded to, for progress it must assuredly be admitted to be, would seem to depend for its existence on the first. The daily increasing interest in the study of Astronomy is doubtless due in a large measure to the rapid advances made in the science, and to the enlarged means of publishing, and above all to the improved methods of illustrating the accomplished facts as soon as they have reached the point at which they can be made interesting and intelligible to educated people who have not devoted special attention to astronomical study. That the general interest in astronomical study has enormously increased of late years is a matter which can hardly be called in question. If any proof of the fact were needed, it would be necessary only to call to mind the existence of flourishing societies, specially intended for the study of astronomy by amateurs (amateurs in the best sense of the term) which have been founded, as well in Great Britain and the Colonies as on the Continent and in America. The hope of still further increasing the number of such amateurs is the prime object of the few pages which follow.

IMPORTANT.

Published under the Auspices of the Navy League.

THE NAVY LEAGUE MAP OF THE WORLD.

Illustrating British Naval History and dedicated to the Children of the British Empire.

The Publishers are pleased to announce the issue of the Second Edition of this important Map. It is much improved in many ways, especially in the matter of colouring. The size, 72 by 63 inches, gives ample scope for the work to be boldly treated, so as to be effective even in a very large room.

The Map shows distinctly: The British Empire boldly Coloured in Red; Naval Stations Named and Outlined in Red; Wealth and Social Condition of the British Empire, etc., etc.

PRICES: On Cloth, Stained Rollers, and Varnished, £1, 1s.; on Cloth, Mahogany Rollers, and Bound with Silk up the Sides, £1, 11s. 6d.; on Cloth, folded up in four Divisions, and in Titled Box Case, £1, 11s. 6d.; on Spring Roller (no Case), £5; on Spring Roller, with Mahogany or Oak Case, £10, 10s.

W. & A. K. JOHNSTON'S

NEW WALL-ATLAS MAPS

FOR CLASS TEACHING

OF

NEW ZEALAND, CENTRAL AND SOUTH AFRICA, AUSTRALIA, CANADA AND WEST INDIA ISLANDS, INDIA, and BRITISH EMPIRE (showing means of communication).

These Maps are strongly coloured, and have the physical features very bold and clear, but names visible to teacher only. Size of each Map 30 by 40 inches.

The Maps of New Zealand, Central and South Africa, and Australia are now ready.

When the above six Maps are completed they will form W. & A. K. Johnston's "Simplex" Wall Atlas of the British Colonies.

Price of each on Cloth and Rollers, Varnished, 6s.

A KINDERGARTEN ALPHABET.

By AGNES DALY.

The Sheet is 34 by 28 inches in size, and gives two Alphabets—one of Capital Letters, the other of Small Letters—beautifully printed in colours. Every Letter is emblematical of an Object, the name of which suggests the Letter—thus M, measure; n, necktie.

Price 3s. 6d. on Cloth and Rollers, Varnished.

THE NATURE STUDY & FREE-ARM DRAWING CHARTS.

Illustrating the Correlation of Drawing & Object Lessons.

IN THREE PARTS, 20 COLOURED DESIGNS IN EACH.

PART I. NOW READY.

In these Charts the Object Lesson has been chosen as the subject to be connected most closely with Drawing.

Each Chart therefore represents a Natural Object, and can be used as an illustration for an Object Lesson as well as an Exercise in Drawing. Thus the use of the Charts will encourage pupils to exercise their powers of observation, and at the same time help them to express the results of these observations.

The Objects selected are such as are common and easily obtainable, and they are drawn in a bold crayon line, and coloured, to enable them to be utilised as exercises in Free-Arm Drawing, coupled with a simple scheme of colouring.

The Drawings have been carefully graduated, those in Part I. being suited to the capacities of Infants and Children in Standards I., II., those in Part II. to Standards III., IV., and Part III. to the upper Standards, thus forming a complete, thorough, and practical scheme.

Size of each Chart, 15½ by 22½ inches. In strong, serviceable, and compact Cloth Case to hang up.

This Case is open at the front, and has a hinged lid; it has therefore the following advantages:—

1. Any Chart can be displayed to the class, or the Charts may be slipped out and any number of them used at the same time, being eyeletted for that purpose.
2. The Charts are kept flat and free from dust.

Price of each Set on Strong Paper, in Case, 8s. 6d.; mounted on Ten Cards, 10s. 6d.

Handbook containing Hints and Instructions free with each Set.

DRAWING CARDS.

Containing reduced Facsimiles of the Charts. Part I. now ready.

In Three Sets, in Cloth Case, price 1s. 6d. per Set.

DRAWING BOOKS.

Corresponding to the Cards. Part I. now ready.

Price 4d. each net.

Specimens of the Cards and Books to Head Teachers on Application.

THE VERY THING. SIMPLEX SERIES.

JOHNSTON'S NEW SIXPENNY ATLAS.

No Map overcrowded. 43 Maps in all. Beautifully printed in Colours. Stiff boards, cloth back.

Specimen Copy sent free to Head Teachers. (Please name School.)

THE BEST GLOBE FOR SCHOOLS & HOME STUDY.

JOHNSTON'S NEW CENTURY GLOBE.

An UP-TO-DATE 12-INCH TERRESTRIAL GLOBE, showing Latest Changes in South Africa and elsewhere. British Possessions Coloured in Red.

The cover is printed in W. & A. K. JOHNSTON'S best style; it shows ocean currents, isothermal lines, and date line. The Globe has a strong metal semi-meridian marked in degrees, the stand is of heavy metal, and gives designs of the Rose, Thistle, and Shamrock.

21s. net to Schools.

A Packing Case is included in the Charge of 21s.

Complete Catalogue of Maps, Atlases, Globes, Wall Illustrations, etc., post free on application.
